Ford to win 67% of vote here: survey

A Herald staff report
Written by Steve Brown

President Ford will amass a huge vote total in the Northwest suburbs today, comparable to Richard Nixon's 1968 victory but behind Nixon's 1972 landslide, a Herald survey taken on the eve of the election shows.

In the poll, The Herald contacted 450 Northwest suburban residents in a scientifically selected random telephone sample.

The poll projects:

- Ford will run up a 67 per cent majority, with 30 per cent of the vote going to Democrat Jimmy Carter and 3 per cent voting for Eugene McCarthy or other candidates;
- Republican James R. Thompson will outpoll Democrat Michael J. Howlett by a 4-1 margin in the gubernatorial race;
- U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane will win a landslide victory over Democrat Edwin L. Frank in the 12th Congressional District; and
- State's Atty. Bernard Carey will get about 70 per cent of the Northwest suburban vote in his race with Democrat Edward Egan.

Nationwide and Illinois polls released in the past three days rated the presidential race a dead heat or gave one of the candidates a one-point edge.

A special segment of The Herald poll, directed at 100 Maine Township residents, projects Republican Samuel H. Young will get 63 per cent of the vote there, compared to 37 per cent for U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva in the hard-fought race in the 10th Congressional District.

The statistics divided undecided voters evenly between the candidates in each race to allow for a projection of the final, election day outcome.

WHILE NATIONAL polls suggested that voter apathy might be the most dominant trend in today's election, 87 per cent of the Northwest suburban residents polled said they intend to vote today.

The vote totals projected by the poll parallel the traditional Republican voting patterns in the area. Compared with the data developed in Herald polls taken after the final presidential debate, Ford has gained some strength among area residents. Ford received the support of 54 per cent of thse asked who they would vote for if the election were held Oct. 22; Carter received 27 per cent.

Before the undecided vote was distributed, a surprisingly large group, nearly 40 per cent of those questioned, said they were undecided in the 12th Congressional District race.

Thompson posted the widest margin over his opponent, with 80 per cent of those questioned backing him and only 20 per cent favoring the Democratic secretary of state.

No clear explanation could be determined for the large number who said they were undecided in the 12th District race. The undecided figure reached almost 40 per cent. Crane has been the congressman in the district since 1969; Frank ran unsuccessfully against him in 1972. Both men have run relatively quiet campaigns this year.

AN EXAMINATION of those who said they would not vote today showed their preferences split along nearly the same lines as those who plan to vote.

In that segment of the poll aimed at the 10th District race, Young's lead exceeded the margin he rolled up in 1972 when he beat Mikva in the district by about 7,400 votes. Young also carried Maine Township in 1974 when he lost to Mikva by fewer than 3,000 votes.

In the 1974 election, former Maine Township GOP Committeeman Floyd Fulle was running for reelection as Cook County Commissioner and was trying, at the same time, to lead the Republican party in the county. Fulle was blamed for a low vote turnout in that election. However, Phil Raffe, the new committeeman, promises a stronger turnout for Young.

In the two previous elections involving Mikva and Young, the voter turnout in Maine Township has proved to be a key to the final outcome. A lower GOP vote in 1974 in the township was generally considered the reason behind Mikva's victory.

MIKVA'S FORCES worked to counter the GOP push with an intensive voter registration drive in the unincorporated portion of the township, where the Democrats have strength.

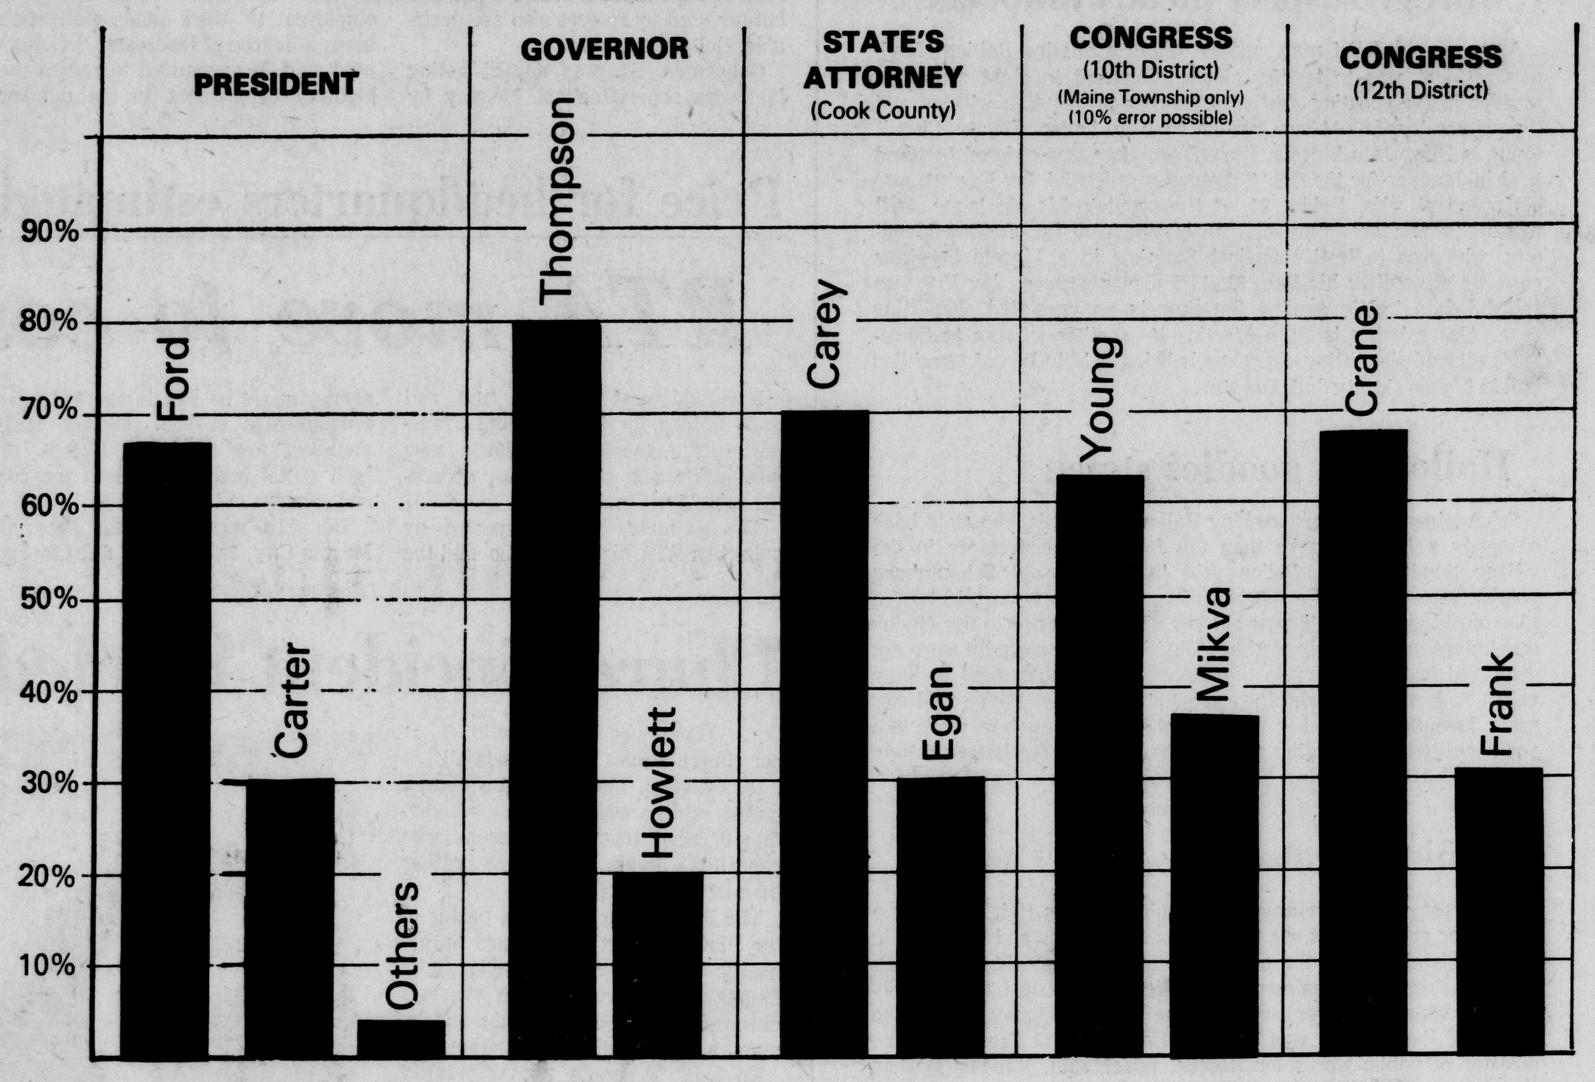

The Herald poll shows far stronger support for the President in the traditionally Republican Northwest suburban area than is indicated in the latest polls conducted on a statewide or national level.

The Roper Organization poll, commissioned by the Public Broadcasting Service, gave Carter a seven-point lead over Ford, while a new NBC poll gave Carter a one-point lead against Ford. It rated the two even when McCarthy's name was considered. NBC said McCarthy would get 6 per cent of the vote nationally.

The Herald's poll has the potential for a 5 per cent margin of error over all and a 10 per cent margin in the 10th Congressional District race.

Undecideds' hem 'n' haw ends today

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Dorothy Beard sat down Monday night and started thumbing through the pages of Redbook magazine.

She had heard all the speeches of Campaign '76, seen all the advertisements, read all the articles, listened to the debates and discussed all the issues.

Yet, as of late Monday, the Arlington Heights woman remained part of the group that is expected to decide today's Presidential election — the group of undecided voters.

ALL THE FANFARE of the campaigns came down to two articles in a national women's magazine: one about Carter and one about Ford.

Mrs. Beard hoped to find her decision hidden somewhere in the paragraphs of those articles.

Talking about the election on the phone Monday, she discussed how she has been unable to choose between what she views as the lesser of two evils.

"There are some things I like about Carter," she said, "and there are some things I like about Ford."

Mrs. Beard, 51, of 2807 Kennicott, considers herself an independent voter, even though she generally tends to support Republican candidates.

IN PAST ELECTIONS, she said, she always has seemed to be able to make a clear choice. Except, of course, for 1972.

That time, she was forced to choose between Sen. George McGovern, who she thought might try to undertake too many social programs, and former President Nixon. She finally voted for McGovern.

"I didn't care that much for Nixon, period," she explained.

Her dilemma is much the same this time around, Mrs. Beard pointed out.

She's slow to support Ford, she said, because he has too many Nixon advisers on his staff. He just hasn't divorced himself from the Nixon administration, she said.

SHE HAS A hard time embracing Carter, she added, because she's afraid he'll go overboard with social programs and because she doesn't like his views on foreign policy.

Even though she can't find a candidate to get worked up about, she said it's important that she get out and vote. She's never missed an important election in her life, she said.

The problem is making up her mind, she said.

"It's one of the most difficult years I've ever had," Mrs. Beard said. "If I were a Republican or a Democrat, maybe it would be a lot easier."

Church incident labeled as 'trick'

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Black leaders in Georgia and elsewhere defended Jimmy Carter Monday in an election eve controversy over segregationist policies at his hometown church, claiming the incident may have been "a Watergate-type trick" staged to embarrass Carter.

But the black minister turned away from the Plains Baptist Church Sunday denied there was any political motivation behind his act. And, in Harrisburg, Pa., Betty Ford suggested Carter is simply getting what he deserves.

"It is a segregated church and obviously that's how he feels about the problem of segregation," Mrs. Ford said.

BLACK POLITICIANS and clergymen supporting the Georgian's candidacy reacted angrily, however, and a Cleveland, Ohio, minister claimed the Ford campaign was trying to capitalize on the issue by sending election eve telegrams to black clergymen in his area.

"I have just received a two-page telegram from President Ford's committee decrying the activities of Jimmy Carter's church in Plains, Ga., yesterday," said the Rev. Alfred M. Waller, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church.

Rev. Bruce Edwards

"The prevalence of such a telegram to so many black ministers in the Cleveland area to me seems to be conclusive evidence that this whole episode is designed to embarrass Mr. Carter. I think it is obvious that they (those barred from Carter's church) are part of the conspiracy."

Ford's main campaign organization, the President Ford Committee, acknowledged sending some 400 telegrams to black ministers across the nation which alleged that Carter was associated with the deacons' decision.

Carter deputy press secretary Betty Rainwater denied the allegations.

THE TELEGRAM concluded: "The question is, if the former Georgia Governor and life-long member of the Plains Baptist Church cannot influence the decisions and opinions of his own church, can we expect him to influence the issues and opinions of the United States Congress?"

Campaigning in Sacramento, Calif., Carter pledged to fight racial discrimination within his local church but also suggested the sudden effort by four blacks to worship there Sunday — when church deacons barred them —was "politically inspired."

In Washington, U.S. Rep. Charles Diggs, a member of Congress' Black Caucus, said he agreed and called the desegregation effort a "Watergate-type trick" designed to hurt Carter among black voters.

Coretta Scott King, widow of Martin Luther King Jr., joined Carter in California and said, "The raising of this issue at this time has been instigated and is consistent with the low level on which the campaign against Gov. Carter has been run."

In Gary, Ind., black mayor Richard Hatcher said "black people all over the United States are too smart. . .to be tricked at the last hour of this campaign."

IN GEORGIA, U.. Rep. Andrew Young, a black and a Democrat, said "all of this is an attempt to confuse black voters and keep them from the polls."

He suggested those who tried to desegregate the church had been put up to it by Carter's political enemies, and State Rep. John White of Albany, Ga., claimed he had information Albany Mayor James H. Gray had paid the group to make their effort.

Gray said White's charge was "an outright lie."

In Portland, Ore., Rosalynn Carter said she finds it "kind of fishy" that the incident happened the Sunday before the election. "I just can't understand," she said. "We have blacks in Industrial section damaged

Halloween vandals hit 25 buildings, vehicles

Halloween vandals armed with a .22-caliber gun rampaged through an industrial section of Arlington Heights, damaging 25 vehicles and buildings, police said.

Police said seven locations along University Drive were vandalized between 9 and 11 p.m. Sunday.

Damaged were two vans owned by Northwest Refrigeration, 8 W. College Dr.; a van owned by Aeroflow Heating & Air Conditioning, 12 W. College Dr.; a truck owned by Morton Herman Co. Inc., 207 W. University; and a truck owned by Midwest Office Supply & Equipment, 221 University Dr., police said.

ALSO DAMAGED were a window at Esche & Lee Inc., 306 W. Campus Dr., and cars parked at 8 W. College Dr. and 215 University Dr., police said.

Police said vandals smashed a window of a car parked at 322 S. Gibbons Ave., and owned by Edward J. Powicki of Chicago on Sunday night.

Vandals broke off rear-view mirrors of a car owned by Stuart A. Bailey, 1015 Brittany Dr., Arlington Heights, between 8:50 p.m. Saturday and 2 a.m. Sunday and slashed three tires of a car owned by the Village of Roselle and parked at the Richard Howorka residence, 719 Crestwood Dr., between midnight and 10:24 a.m. Sunday, police said.

Howorka is Roselle public works director, police said.

Vandals also spray-painted obscenities on a house and two cars owned by Terry Schwab, 2020 Lilac Ter., and spray-painted trees near the Lilac Terrace address between dusk Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday, police said.

VANDALS DESTROYED two lamps valued at $400 in front of the Marion Caldarazzo residence, 806 Valley Dr., between 10 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday and shot holes through two picture windows at the Northwest Firestone dealer, 630 W. Northwest Hwy., between 3 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Monday, police said.

Police said vandals apparently used a butane lighter to set fire to a treehouse in a vacant lot at 315 N. Hickory Ave. shortly after noon Sunday. Witnesses reported seeing two youths running from the lot, one with slicked-back hair and wearing a black jacket with a red scarf tucked into his belt, police said.

Firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze, police said.

Police said they had called regular and reserve officers in anticipation of trouble between 4 p.m. and midnight Sunday and handled 48 nuisance, vandalism and disorderly conduct calls Sunday night.

Police said this Halloween was quieter than past holidays, which have averaged about 60 calls. Normally, police handled only five or six such calls on a Sunday night, police said.

2 nabbed for gas station holdups

Two men accused of robbing two Northwest suburban gas stations at gunpoint were arrested by Park Ridge police Monday night after the pair took $107 from a Clark Station at Oakton Street and Northwest Highway, Park Ridge. Police did not identify the two men pending investigation, but the pair is suspected of robbing the Clark Station, 1733 Oakton, Des Plaines, at 7:21 p.m., shortly before the Park Ridge robbery. Park Ridge police said a handgun was recovered in the arrests, but would not elaborate on how the two men were apprehended. An employe at the Des Plaines Clark station said Monday night that the two suspects took an undetermined amount of money from a station attendant. No injuries were reported in the incidents.

Murder suspect pleads innocent

A 21-year-old Joliet man, against whom a missing Rolling Meadows resident was to testify, pleaded innocent to eight counts of murder in the shooting deaths of another prosecution witness and the witness' wife. At an arraignment in Logan County Circuit Court in Downstate Lincoln, Russell Smrekar was ordered to stand trial in January for the Oct. 9 shotgun murders of Jay Fry, 24, and his pregnant wife, Robin, 24, at the couple's Lincoln home. Still missing is Michael Mansfield, 20, of 3915 Gull Ct., Rolling Meadows, who was to testify against Smrekar in a Lincoln burglary case six days after his Dec. 31, 1975 disappearance. Jay Fry was scheduled to testify against Smrekar in an unrelated shoplifting case. Also missing is Ruth Martin, 51, another witness to Smrekar's alleged shoplifting. Smrekar is being held in lieu of $2 million bail in Macon County Jail, Decatur.

Halloween goodies stolen

Schaumburg police are seeking Halloween ghouls who stole bags of candy valued at more than $20 from trick-or-treaters in the village Sunday night. Police said two 11-year-old Schaumburg youths were robbed of a $20 bag of candy by an 8-year-old boy, a 15-year-old girl and a 16-year-old boy who threatened to use chains and knives against their victims. The weapons reportedly were not displayed in the robbery in the elevator of an apartment building at 300 S. Roselle Rd., shortly after 7 p.m. Sunday. Police said two male juveniles jumped a 13-year-old Schaumbug boy while the youth was trick-or-treating on the 1200 block of Weathersfield Way at about 6:30 p.m. Sunday. The juveniles fled with a bag of candy.

Denied treats, they trick

Halloween vandals rampaged through Arlington Heights, using a .22-caliber gun to shoot out windows of 25 vehicles and buildings in the industrial area in the northern section of the village. Vandals also set fires, spray-painted obscenities and slashed tires in isolated incidents in other areas of the village Sunday night. One victim of the vandals was Richard Howorka, 719 Crestwood Dr., director of public works for Roselle, police said. Vandals slashed three tires of a Roselle car parked at the Howorka residence, police said. Other northwest suburbs reported few incidents of vandalism, and Arlington Heights police said this year's Halloween in their village was quieter than past Halloweens.

Golterman new highways chief

Expressway restrictions urged

by KURT BAER

Driving on Chicago area expressways would be easier if truck traffic was restricted to one or two lanes at specially posted speeds. Richard H. Golterman, the new superintendent of the Cook County Highway Dept. said Monday.

Golterman, 1800 Banbury, Inverness, said he is willing to discuss the restricted lane idea with trucking associations in an attempt to win voluntary agreement on the plan.

If a cooperative plan cannot be developed, state legislation would be needed to control truck traffic, he said.

STRICT ENFORCEMENT of load limits and restrictions on the transportation of certain hazardous cargos such as high explosives and trailers of hot tar used by roofers also are desirable, Golterman said.

Golterman, 53, was named acting highways superintendent Monday by Cook County Board Pres. George W. Dunne. His appointment to the $41,000-a-year post will become permanent after his appointment is confirmed by the state.

Golterman said he would continue a recent investigation into loafing by county highway maintenance crews. Four highway supervisors have been fired, a highway engineer suspended and disciplinary action taken against 44 other department employes so far in the investigation.

"I PLAN TO review all the reports and issues personally and then decide if any further action is warranted," he said. He blamed "poor motivation" for loafing by highway department employes, first disclosed early in October by the Better Government Assn.

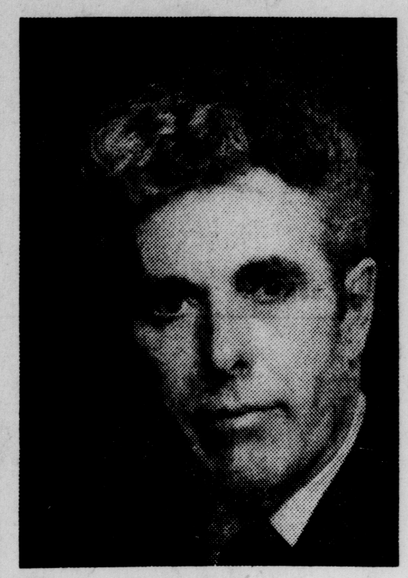

"There is a need to motivate your employes to work and motivation takes a degree of leadership," Golterman said. He promised to return the highway department to the number one position in county government.

Golterman returns as Cook County highway superintendent after a seven-year absence. He was first appointed to the post in 1967 by Richard B. Ogilvie, then county board president.

IN 1969 HE FOLLOWED Ogilvie into state government, serving as chief highway engineer and chief transportation engineer for the state until 1972.

After Ogilvie's loss to Gov. Dan Walker in 1972, Golterman went into business as a consulting engineer. He was elected an Inverness trustee in 1967, but resigned before the 1969 election.

Golterman said in recent years money has been diverted from new highways and highway maintenance to other forms of transportation and to the police and courts. Continued neglect of the county highways could wind up as an economic stranglehold, he said.

Price for headquarters estimated

RTA move to cost $4.8 million

It would cost between $4.8 and $6.06 million for the Regional Transportation Authority to build a new headquarters in the suburbs, according to RTA estimates.

The estimates were requested by suburban RTA directors, who said the agency might be able to operate more economically in the suburbs. Staff members are compiling figures on both rental and purchase in the city and suburbs.

The RTA now rents four floors in Marina City, 300 N. State St., Chicago at a cost of $440,000 a year. The agency has to decide by Nov. 30 whether to renew its lease.

TWO SUBURBAN directors Monday said they do not think it is likely the RTA will move to the suburbs, but said they wanted to have information on suburban office space before making a decision.

"First of all, I think we have to get the facts and figures," said board member Gene Leonard of Oak Forest, saying a decision to move to the suburbs would have to be justified economically. "I certainly would not vote for a move to the suburbs just to move to the suburbs."

Suburban board members have been lobbying for their areas to get a bigger share of the RTA pie ever since the agency began two years ago. Leonard and Jerry Boose of St. Charles, however, admitted it would not be feasible for the RTA to locate in some of the far suburbs such as Aurora.

SITES BEING considered include office buildings under construction at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg, in Des Plaines near the Northwest Tollway, in Northbrook, Rosemont and Deerfield.

Boose said whether the RTA moves to the suburbs or stays in the city, he is unhappy with the lease terms at Marina City. He said the rental agreement includes hidden charges, such as utilities and a major overhaul of the heating system.

RTA staff members also are compiling data on other locations in Chicago, including the Time-Life Building, CNA Plaza, and Prudential Plaza.

The six-county agency needs about 70,000 square feet of space, and it is estimated to cost about 50 cents per square foot to move within the city. That price jumps to 55 cents if the move is to the suburbs. Telephone installation charges have not been calculated.

Church incident labeled as 'trick'

our church almost every Sunday."

IN PLAINS, meantime, the church pastor said he would reject a resignation demand from the deacons who cancelled Sunday's service rather than let the blacks inside.

The Rev. Bruce Edwards, pastor of the Plains Baptist Church and an opponent of the no-blacks decision, said Monday a majority of the church's deacons voted Sunday night to demand his "immediate resignation."

He said he would not voluntarily comply and had been "encouraged" by some parishioners to stay and fight the issue. He said he could only be fired by majority vote of the church's 415 members.

The controversy erupted Sunday when the church deacons cancelled services rather than admit four blacks, led by the Rev. Clennon King from nearby Albany, who was applying for membership in the Plains church.

IN ALBANY Monday, King denied he was politically motivated in leading the group to the church.

"I feel sorry for the Rev. Edwards for making a statement that my motives were political," King said, "but it's not just the Rev. Edwards, but all whites who think they have Negroes in the bag, all mapped out and they know that Clennon King would never do that for a check from the GOP."

Blacks, including friends of Carter's mother, have worshipped at the church in the past, but the general policy dating from a 1965 resolution passed during civil disorders is to bar them.

Edwards angered the deacons by telling reporters, in a conference that got nationwide television coverage, he opposed the ban but the deacons enforced it.

CAMPAIGNING IN Sacramento, Calif., Carter called a news conference to deal with the issue, saying he would "stay within the church and try to change an attitude I abhor . . .

"I can't resign from the human race because of discrimination . . . and I can't resign from my own church because of discrimination."

He said he thought the Rev. King's effort to apply for membership at that particular moment might have been "politically inspired," noting King is a Republican and is not a Baptist.

In Albany, Ga., King's brother, civil rights attorney C. B. King, urged blacks to vote for Carter and called the church incident "irrelevant" to the election.

"THIS INCIDENT is merely the latest attempt in a conspiracy to discourage blacks from participating in national elections . . ." Diggs said. "I think Ford supporters underestimate the intelligence of the average voter."

Edwards said he assumed his opposition to a ban on blacks prompted the deacon's attempt to fire him. He said he had not received any official written request for his resignation, however.

"I think if I was not opposed to the resolution, there would be no problems," he said.

There was no comment from the 12 deacons by mid-Monday.

REV. C. B. KING, right, brother of Rev. Clennon King who along with three other blacks, was turned away from the Plains, GA. Baptist church, told an Atlanta "get out the vote" rally Monday that he had mixed emotions about the rally but was happy to celebrate the Jimmy Carter success — so far, but was saddened by a personal family tragedy in terms of his brother's illness, a reference to his brother's prior mental illness. With Rev. King is Georgia congressman Andrew Young.

Mozambique claims Rhodesian invasion

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Mozambique said Monday night that tank-led Rhodesian troops with bomber support have invaded two sections of it territory in the white regime's most extensive cross-border raids against guerrilla sanctuaries.

"Fierce fighting is still going on," the Mozambique Information Agency said in a communique.

Rhodesia, which reported the attack Sunday, had said its security forces conducted a "hot-pursuit" operation against guerrillas — typically a hit-and-run assault of short duration. Mozambique said the Rhodesian troops had been across the border for more than 24 hours and were an invasion force.

Mozambique said Rhodesian troops using tanks, mortars, cannon, aircraft, including bombers, infantry and mounted troops crossed into Mozambique at 4 a.m. Sunday, entering Gaza province where Rhodesia, Mozambique and South Africa meet.

Other Rhodesian forces reportedly crossed into Tete province in northwestern Mozambique at 5:25 a.m. Sunday.

The communique said the Rhodesian force in Gaza province was trying to drive deep into Mozambique and that the invaders already had cut lines of communication, including a railroad.

The statement reported battles under way in five different areas of Tete province.

Mozambique contends Rhodesian forces have made more than 50 strikes into its territory since Mozambique closed its border with Rhodesia last March.

"According to information coming from these areas the People's Forces for the Liberation of Mozambique are fighting off the attackers and are firm in their determination to expel the invaders although fierce fighting is still going on," the communique said.

At the border town of Umtali, Rhodesia, a military commander threatened sharp retaliation in case Mozambican forces or guerrillas attack to retaliate for the raids on the guerrilla bases across the frontier.

"They'll get hammered good and proper. I'll take anything they can dish out," said Brig. Gen. Derry McIntyre, commander of Rhodesia's 3rd Brigade along the border with Mozambique.

Civil defense officials warned residents of Umtali, Rhodesia's third largest city, to be ready to evacuate.

The last Rhodesian cross-border raid against guerrilla camps three months ago was followed by a Mozambican artillery barrage against Umtali two days later.

Tension rose after Rodesia's stab into Mozambique during the weekend in a so-called "hot pursuit" chase after black Rhodesian guerrillas.

Military sources said Mozambique has moved up to 150 troops and guerrillas to the frontier, across from Rodesia's Forbes border outpost, three miles from Utali.

In Geneva, meantime, the United States stepped into the Rhodesia peace conference to try to help bridge a bitter impasse between black and white Rhodesian delegations. Hours later Britain's conference chairman called together all the delegates for a meeting Tuesday to discuss fixing a firm date for Rhodesian independence and black majority rule.

William Schaufele, sent to Geneva by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger after the black delegations totally rejected details of the American plan for a peaceful transition to black majority rule, met with British conference chairman Ivor Richard and Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

One American source said the assistant secretary of state for African affairs hoped his "quiet diplomacy" would bridge the gap between the blacks' rejection of the peace plan and the Smith's insistence the white regime will stick to Kissinger's proposals.

Presidential election seen as dead-heat by indicators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the eve of the 1976 bicentennial election, President Ford and Jimmy Carter were locked Monday in one of the closest races for the presidency in modern political history. The outcome was in doubt.

Every poll, survey, indicator and political barometer pointed to a dead-heat election.

At stake was President Ford's bid, as the first nonelected president in U.S. history, for a four year term of his own and Carter's relentless 22-month drive for the presidency and a return of the Democrats to the White House after eight years.

While the presidential race was extremely close, Democrats are prohibitive favorites to retain control of Congress and keep their big edge among state chief executives. But some incumbent senators, including James Buckley, R-N.Y., Vance Hartke, D-Ind., and Glenn Beall, R-Md., appeared headed for defeat.

There were 14 governorships, 33 Senate seats and all 435 House seats on the ballot Tuesday.

Sparing neither themselves nor their resources, fighting fatigue as the long campaign came to a close, the two presidential candidates stumped into the closing hours in search of the few votes in toss-up states that could turn the election.

Ending a marathon, 11-day, nonstop, coast-to-coast tour, Ford campaigned in Ohio, without which no Republican has ever won, and his home-state Michigan where he received a gala welcome upon his arrival in Grand Rapids.

Carter, the former Georgia governor who exploded out of political obscurity to win the Democratic presidential nomination, campaigned in California — where the latest poll showed him six points behind — before invading toss-up Michigan and heading to his rural south Georgia home of Plains.

The latest nationwide polls clearly outlined the closeness of the election and indicated possible reruns of the Kennedy-Nixon race in 1960 and the 1968 battle between Nixon and Humphrey.

The Gallup poll, released Monday, gave Ford a 47-46 edge, with 4 per cent undecided and 3 per cent voting for other candidates. The one-point edge was well within statistical error.

The latest ABC-Harris poll gave Carter a one-point lead and the last CBS-New York survey said it was too close to call. UPI's 50-state survey gave Carter a lead in electoral votes but made it too close to call.

Pollster Louis Harris said Sunday that the closing hours of campaigning — which included half-hour television presentations in prime time on all three networks by both candidates — could decide the election.

The national polls, and the ones in crucial states, showed a remarkable resurgence by Ford and a dramatic slippage in Carter's support as the campaign headed into the stretch.

Among the key factors, which pollsters could not determine, was whether Carter had managed to stop his downward slide short of defeat or whether Ford's strong momentum was still under way.

With neither candidate generating great enthusiasm until the final stages of the campaign and with no overriding single issue to stir interest, the voter turnout was considered a critical factor. The Weather Bureau predicted generally ideal weather around the country.

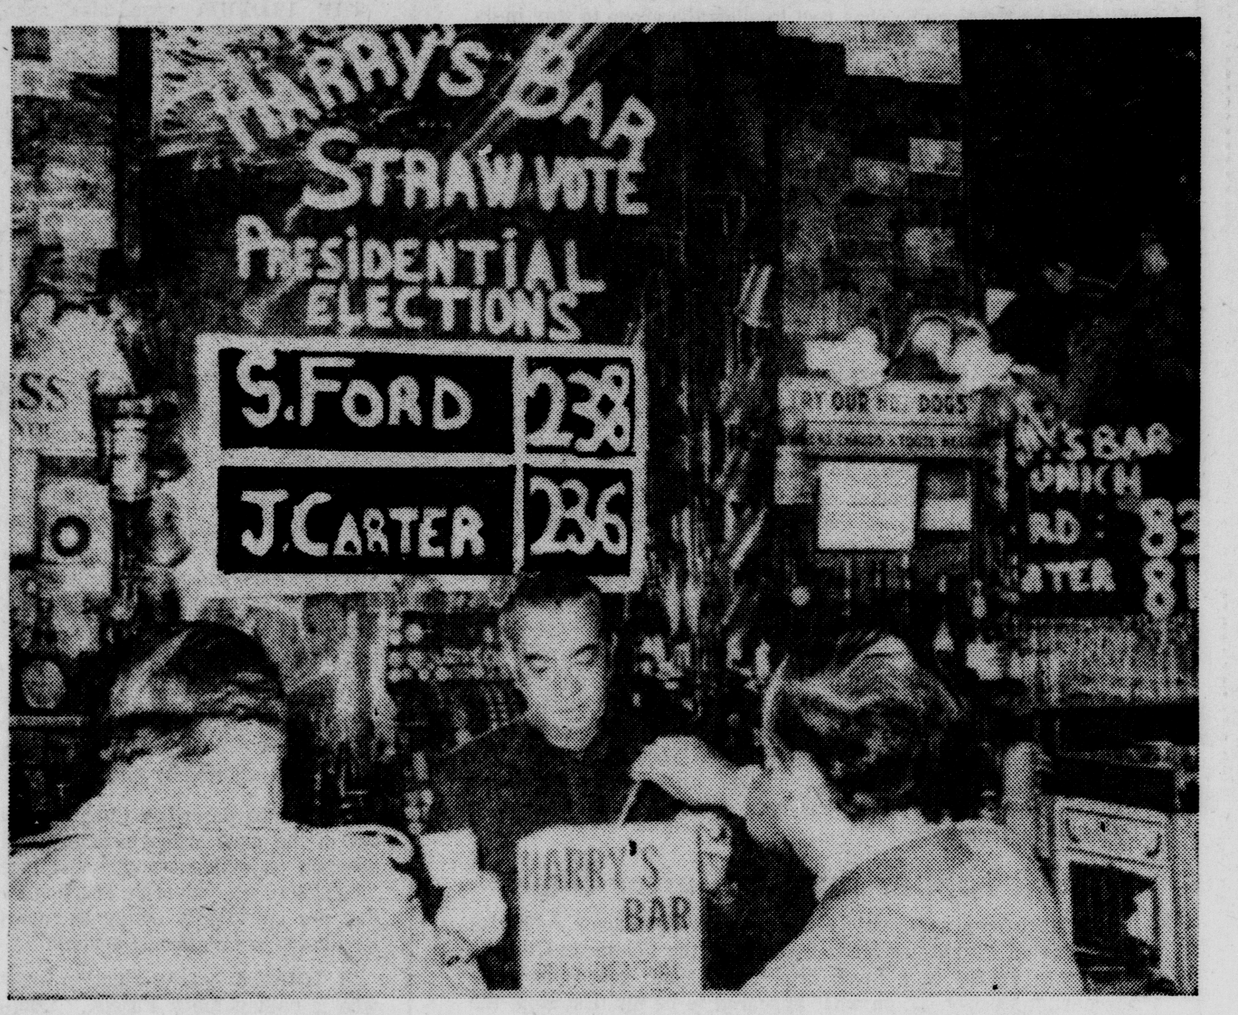

Carter has been pleading for a large turnout which traditionally favors the Democrats.

Carter, the first president candidate from a "deep" South state in a century, was banking on a near-sweep of the South and border states, the backing of traditionally Democratic states like Minnesota, plus a combination of wins in the big-electoral vote states to bring him victory.

Ford, denied the southern base that has gone increasingly Republican since the 1960s, was counting on a smaller GOP stronghold in the plains and mountains states plus hoping to reach the magic 270 electoral votes needed for victory by edging Carter in the Midwest and California.

Although Carter is favored to take New York's 41 electoral votes and polls show Ford leading for California 45 votes, the other three "Big Five" states — Pennsylvania (27), Illinois (26), and Texas (26) are considered tossups.

So are Ohio with 25, Michigan with 21, New Jersey with 17, and Indiana with 13.

HERE ARE THE RESULTS of the straw vote for the U.S. presidential elections taken in "Harry's American Bar," where many Americans living in Paris gather. The returns show Gerald Ford the winner with 238 votes to Jimmy Carter's 236. Owner Andy MacElhone (center behind bar and ballot box) said Harry's bar straw vote has proved to be correct since 1924.

Hunt for ferryboat bodies ends; 76 found

St. Charles Parish authorities Monday ended the 13-day search for bodies missing from the Oct. 20 collision of a ferryboat and a Norwegian tanker in the Mississippi River. Recovery workers searched around the clock for victims of the early morning collision and 76 bodies have been recovered. The last body was found Oct. 30. A Coast Guard board of inquiry is investigating the early morning accident in which a 664-foot tanker rammed and capsized the commuter ferry, toppling cars, trucks and pedestrians into the chilly river.

Helsinki panel has roadblocks: member

The Soviet Union and the State Department have joined in throwing up roadblocks to a congressionally mandated commission for monitoring compliance with the East-West Helsinki Accord, a commission member said Monday. The source said the 15-member commission, now preparing for its first fact-finding trip, has received "strong indications" the governments of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union will not allow the panel to enter. The commission official said the members of the executive branch who serve as commissioners also have been instructed by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to journey only to Brussels and not to attempt to enter the communist countries.

Boston judge wants to try cocaine

A District Court judge in Boston said Monday he wants to try some cocaine in order to determine if the drug is as harmful as Massachusetts law says. Judge Elwood McKenney, presiding over a case challenging the constitutionality of the state's anticocaine laws, said he wants to try the drug because the prosecution has not presented him any evidence to convince him it is addictive. "We had a situation where there were expert witnesses presented by the defense and none by the prosecution," McKenney said in an interview. "All the expert witnesses concurred that it is not addictive."

W. Germany fires top air force chiefs

West Germany's defense minister Georg Leber fired two air force commanders Monday for defending Adolf Hitler's favorite pilot, who took part in neo-Nazi activities after World War II. "They have stepped over the line," Leber told a news conference. Leber announced the removal of Lt. Gen. Walter Krupinski, commander of the Air Fleet, and his deputy, Maj. Gen. Karl Heinz Franke. They are the air force's two highest ranking officers. The two generals had said Col. Hans Ulrich Rudel, who commanded the fearsome Stuka dive bombers that destroyed Rotterdam and Warsaw in World War II, has as much right to express his views as former Communists like Herbert Wehner, the parliamentary floor leader of the governing Social Democratic party.

Ford, Carter end final vote bids

by United Press International

President Ford and Jimmy Carter, both predicting victory, campaigned Monday in the final hours before the election, appealing both in person and on nationwide television for the crucial votes that could swing the outcome.

The latest polls indicated a photo finish and possibly one of the closest race for the presidency in modern times.

The Gallup poll gave Ford a one-point lead, the latest Harris poll had Carter ahead by one and an NBC survey had them dead-even.

Ending 11 days of marathon stumping, Ford returned home to Michigan in a final bid for the state's 21 electoral votes after stumping through Ohio, a tossup state with 25 electoral votes.

Carter campaigned down the California coast in a final call for that state's 45 electoral votes before heading for a last rally in Michigan on the way home to Plains, Ga.

But the last day of Carter's 22-month quest for the White House was marred by a storm raised when the deacons of his home church cancelled Sunday services rather than admit blacks.

With Martin Luther King's widow at his side, Carter said he abhorred the exclusion of blacks from his Baptist Church in Plains, Ga., but said he will remain in it to "make sure that discrimination is eliminated."

Although Ford did not mention the church incident, his wife Betty, said in Harrisburg, Pa., that Carter's church "is a segregated church and obviously that's how he feels about the problem of segregation."

Pledging peace and tax cuts if elected, Ford, arriving in Detroit, urged his "Michigan family" to rally behind him.

To cheering crowds in Ohio and at the Detroit airport, Ford said "we'll win tomorrow."

"You can tell a lot about a man through the way his family talks about him," Ford said at the airport. "Michigan is my family."

"I am a part of this state," Ford, a resident of Grand Rapids, said. "I know you will support me as you always have."

Standing with his wife, who had flown in from Pennsylvania, Ford said "Of course we're going to win. There's just that feeling I've had in 13 other elections . . . the people's support."

Campaigning down the California coast, Carter exhorted party workers to get out the vote. California — where Ford was leading in the last poll — has the nation's largest number of electoral votes.

"It's going to be very close," Carter told a Democratic breakfast rally. "I feel very deeply that we, together, tomorrow, are going to win."

The campaign finale for both was in Ford's native Michigan: the President, trying to hold the state in his column, coming home for a wild, night-time parade in Grand Rapids; and Carter, flying in from California, stumping blue collar Flint and Detroit in a drive for Michigan's tossup vote.

Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, made one last pitch for the rich electoral vote hauls of New York and Pennsylvania before joining Carteer in Flint, center of the unionized, industrial area whose votes could tip Michigan into Carter's column. The final Detroit news poll Monday said Ford led Carter by only 42 to 41 per cent statewide.

Sen. Robert Dole, the Republican vice presidential candidate, campaigned in Illinois — another major electoral vote state rated a toss-up, with a slight edge for Ford — and then worked the farm belt states of Iowa and Missouri.

Centerpiece of the last-day campaigns, however, was an evening, prime-time televison blitz by both candidates. Each blocked out half an hour on the three major networks for a filmed appeal to voters produced by some of the top media experts in the business.

Arabs volunteering for Israeli army

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Dozens of Christian Arabs living in Israel have volunteered to join the Jewish state's army in gratitude for Israeli military aid to Lebanese Christians, a senior government official said Monday.

The Israeli armed forces drafts Jewish men and women, and Arab men of the non-Moslem Druze religious sect. The armed forces also accept volunteers from the nomadic Arab Bedouins.

Shmuel Toledano, the prime minister's minority affairs adviser, said the Arabs have made their requests informally to members of parliament, the cabinet and the army.

"The decision whether to accept the Arab requests will be made by the Defense Ministry," Toledano said. "But we welcome their interest and readiness to join the army."

He said several dozen Christian Arabs have expressed willingness to join the Israeli army. Other officials put the figure at about 50.

"Their aim is to demonstrate good will toward Israel for what they see as Israel having done for the Christians in Lebanon," Toledano said.

Arab informants said reports of the massacre of Christian villages during Lebanon's civil war persauded many Arabs to volunteer. Israel also has gained friends among Christians on both sides of the Lebanese frontier with its "good fence" policy of providing medical help, military aid, work and food for Christians in southern Lebanon.

Many pro-Israeli Arabs say the refusal of Israel to draft its largest minority is one of the factors that have set Arabs apart and made them feel like second class citizens in the Jewish state.

The latest group of Arabs offering to join the Israeli armed forces expressed opposition to joining the Arab-speaking Druze units in the green-bereted border police. The Druze have a reputation for toughness in dealing with suspected Palestinian guerrillas.

Harry Houdini watchers disappointed on Halloween

People

• Halloween was a disappointment to groups trying to make contact with the spirit of escape artist Harry Houdini, who died on Halloween 50 years ago. Several magicians gathered Sunday in the Detroit hospital room where Houdini died, hoping for a message from the master. All they got on a videotape machine brought to record the event was interference from a local rock station. "It's not even very good music," said one of the magicians.

• Clarence Chamberlin, 83, who made a solo flight across the Atlantic two weeks after Charles A. Lindbergh, died Sunday in a Griffin (Conn.) hospital of an apparent heart attack. During that flight, Chamberlin became the first to fly a passenger across the ocean. He flew to Berlin from New York, setting a world distance record. Funeral services will be held Wednesday.

• Prince Charles — like so many other sailors — has a pinup photo tacked above the bunk in his commander's quarters aboard the Royal Navy minesweeper Bronington. Neither the heir to the British throne nor his crew will identify the bikini-clad beauty. London photographers, however, speculated she might be Charles' current girlfriend, Davina Sheffield. Charles, meantime, announced he would leave the Navy Dec. 15 after five years of service to head the committee organizing the 1977 celebration of Queen Elizabeth's 25th year on the throne.

• Camel cops raided a Bedouin camp deep in the Sinai desert to rescue a woman kidnaped by her former fiance. Israeli police said the woman, Salmiyeh Salem Hamous, 35, was abducted by six Bedouins on camelback who took her to their camp during a sandstorm. Police followed on their own camels, rescued the woman and arrested the suspects. They said a marriage between the woman and the abductor had been arranged years ago but never carried out. The would-be bridegroom is now 62 years old.

13 election judges indicted for fraud

Thirteen election judges were indicted Monday by a Cook County grand jury on charges including forgery, perjury and stuffing of ballot boxes. Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said the five Republican and eight Democratic judges forged absentee ballot applications, asked for ballots using phony names and stuffed ballot boxes at the March 16 primary.

Carey said he wants to dismiss 56 other judges for misconduct at the polls. Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley criticized Carey's timing, calling the election eve indictments a "cheap political ploy." Carey said it took this long to prepare his case and added he hopes it will "place vote thieves on notice. Vote fraud is no longer business as usual in Cook County."

Krishna eviction stay denied

A Cook County Circuit Court judge Monday denied a request in a suit filed by the Hare Krishna sect to allow the group to stay in its temple and theological center in north suburban Evanston. The International Society for Krishna Consciousness, located in a two-story building formerly used by the YMCA, was served with an eviction notice by the City of Evanston on Sept. 13. The city said the area is not zoned for a church or theological seminary.

Judge Raymond K. Berg denied the society's request for a preliminary injunction to prevent the city from evicting the group. The Evanston City Council issued a special-use permit to the society in 1973 contingent upon the society's improvement of the building to meet city building codes. City Attorney J. M. Siegel told Berg Monday the society had not met the requirements of the permit.

Emergency cases cut at hospitals

Police and firemen were told Monday to stop bringing patients to Cook County and Oak Forest hospitals immediately in anticipation of a strike by nurses at 7 a.m. Wednesday. Dr. James G. Haughton, executive director of the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission which runs the two hospitals, issued the directive effective at 10:30 a.m. Monday.

Haughton said in the directive "this action is being taken in the interest of safe patient care, because of the shortage of nurses if the strike takes place." However, he said, "emergency rooms remain open for patients who arrive by means other" than police or fire department ambulances. Haughton also asked that private ambulance services immediately stop bringing patients to the hospital. The registered nurses threatening to strike are members of the Illinois Nurses Assn., which represents 1,000 nurses at Cook County Hospital and 200 nurses at Oak Forest Hospital. Their contract expired June 30 but has been extended until Wednesday by mutual agreement.

Bank robber arrested after heist

A Chicago man apparently planning a series of bank robberies was arrested Monday as he walked out of the Continental Illinois Bank with $11,806 in a black brief case. Bank guards arrested Emmanuel Murray, 33, on what appeared to be his first stop, the FBI said. Murray took the money from teller Ann Prieskop at the bank after he displayed a handprinted note which said, "This is a hold up. I have a gun and I will shoot to kill. Put all your money in this bag."

The teller stuffed the brief case with money and quietly pressed an alarm. Murray was arrested by bank guards as he tried to walk away. He was not armed. Several notes with the same wording were found on Murray's person, the FBI said, indicating the bank perhaps was only the first stop.

Teamster scavengers OK pact

Teamster garbage collection truck drivers and helpers in Chicago, Maywood, Kankakee and Aurora voted Monday to accept a three-year contract with the Chicago and Suburban Refuse Disposal Assn. The vote was 1,169 to 295. Union officials said the agreement averted a strike by 1,800 truck drivers.

The drivers and helpers belong to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local 731 in Chicago, Local 705 in Maywood and Kankakee and Local 423 in Aurora. The 150 firms in the employers association serve apartment buildings and commercial and industrial firms in Chicago and suburbs.

Integrity, pledges pushed in last fling

Republican James R. Thompson promised "a new generation of integrity" and Democrat Michael J. Howlett stressed his pledge Monday to hold the line on taxes, in their final efforts at making 11 months of effort pay off at the polls. Thompson, quoting Abraham Lincoln and sticking to his prediction of a one-million vote victory margin, made last minute campaign appearances in Chicago, Rockford, Moline, Peoria, Springfield, East St. Louis and Marion.

Howlett hammered on the old standby themes of experience, taxes and school aid as he sent the rest of his party's ticket off on two separate fly-arounds, hitting a total of 10 cities.

Unit to study mental health laws

A circuit court judge Monday named a blue-ribbon panel to reexamine Illinois' complex mental health laws. Cook County Circuit Court Judge Joseph Schneider chairman of the Governor's Commission for Revision of the Mental Health Code, announced the formation of the panel which he will head.

It will review mental health laws dealing with persons found incompetent to stand trial because of insanity and with those found innocent of violent crimes by reason of insanity. Schneider said the panel was formed as a result of a recent slaying in which the chief suspect, former Chicago fireman James O'Malley, was acquitted of murder charges by reason of insanity. O'Malley recently was freed by the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health. He is a suspect in the killing of a security guard at O'Hare Airport.

Among those named to the committee were Dr. Leroy Levitt, state mental health director; Richard Fitzgerald, presiding judge of Cook County Criminal Court; Gino DiVito, head of the state's attorney's criminal division; Prof. Norval Morris, dean of the University of Chicago Law School, and Dr. Ronald Schlensky, lawyer and professor of psychiatry at Northwestern University.

Let Teamsters back in: boss

A union official Monday urged the AFL-CIO to invite the Teamsters Union to rejoin the labor organization as a means of strengthening the power and influence of the American trade union movement. Patrick E. Gorman, board chairman of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, an AFL-CIO affiliate, wrote in the November issue of his union's publication, The Butcher Workman, "The cause of their (teamsters) expulsion no longer exists. The person mostly involved who seemingly was the center of the rift is no longer on the scene."

Sources close to the butchers' union believe Gorman was referring to Jimmy Hoffa, one-time president of the teamsters, who vanished more than a year ago and is presumed dead. The teamsters were expelled from the AFL-CIO nearly 20 years ago.

Antideath penalty appeals denied

by JAMES A. KIDNEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday turned aside two Georgia capital punishment appeals asking whether persons opposed to the death penalty can be excluded from juries.

In both cases, potential jurors were excluded from duty when they voiced personal opposition to capital punishment.

The high court accepted a third death penalty case, from Florida, for review later this term. But the major issue raised in that appeal is whether the prosecutor denied the defendant's right to a fair trial by inflaming the jury during closing arguments.

THE FLORIDA case also asks whether a defendant's right to a jury representing a fair cross-section of the community is violated by excluding persons opposed to the death penalty from at lest the guilt phase of a capital trial.

But that issue was not addressed by the Florida Supreme Court and it appeared the question of inflammatory argument is what interested the U.S. Supreme Court justices.

The high court upheld death penalty laws in Florida, Georgia and Texas last July. Abolitionists had hoped the court would examine the constitutionality of excluding jurors opposing the death penalty.

The question still can be argued in the Florida appeal, since the high court did not expressly limit the issues, but it is uncertain how many of those already on death row can rely on that legal course in seeking a stay of execution.

BY DENYING review of the two Georgia cases, based more heavily on the jury exclusion argument, the justices seemed to be avoiding that issue for now.

The Legal Defense Fund of the NAACP argued in all three cases that the court has abolished mandatory death penalty laws and seemingly requires juries to rule separately on guilt and punishment. Therefore, lawyers said, there is no reason to exclude jurors who oppose the death penalty from the guilt phase of a trial.

In addition, the LDF said courts have not been rigorously applying a 1968 high court decision that persons may not be excluded from jury duty in a capital case merely because they have feelings against the death penalty.

The court said then that potential jurors must be questioned closely to determine if their feelings would prevent them from reaching a verdict based on the evidence.

THE FLORIDA case involves Willie Jasper Darden, sentenced to die in the Florida electric chair for a 1973 holdup and slaying. The court will review his claim the prosecutor unduly inflamed the trial jury when he called Darden an "animal" and said "I wish he had been shot in the mouth" rather than the victim.

In other action Monday, the court:

• Agreed to decide whether states, in this case New York, can constitutionally require resident aliens to promise to become U.S. citizens as a condition of obtaining college scholarships and loans.

• Agreed to decide whether United Air Lines must pay a stewardess backpay after firing her for getting married and then rehiring her after the rule against marriage was held illegal.

• Let stand the 1975 conspiracy-bribery convictions of former Oklahoma Gov. David Hall and a co-defendant.

Literature asks Brennan vote

Probe political leaflet: Chapman

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, Monday asked the Cook County State's Attorney to investigate the source of campaign literature attacking her and urging support for Democrat Joan Brennan of Elk Grove Village.

Chapman asked for the investigation because the literature does not identify who was distributing it, which is required by Illinois law.

The leaflet describes Chapman as one of the most ardent promoters of abortion on demand and states that "legislators who advocate abortion today are unwittingly acting as dupes for Fascist or Communist leaders."

"I THINK I have a right to know who is calling me a Fascist," Chapman said.

The leaflet calls for a "bullet" vote for Mrs. Brennan. Brennan told The Herald she had not seen the document and that her volunteers were not distributing it.

Eugenia Chapman

Joan Brennan

Brennan has had the support of right-to-life organizations during the campaign.

According to the complaint filed with the state's attorney's office, the leaflet was distributed Sunday outside Our Lady of the Wayside Church, 432 W. Park, Arlington Heights. The leaflet was distributed with other right-to-life material and a press release from the Brennan campaign commenting on the abortion issues.

State law requires all persons distributing political literature to identify the source of the literature. Violation of the law is a misdemeanor.

A spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey had no comment Monday on the request for the investigation.

IN AN UNRELATED development, campaign volunteers apparently supporting Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett distributed information regarding Republican James R. Thompson's position on low- and moderate-income housing at the commuter train station in Arlington Heights Monday morning.

Howlett aides said they had no knowledge of the literature.

The low-income housing issue is considered a sensitive question in the village because of the local case before the U.S. Supreme Court over the village's effort to use its zoning power to block construction of a subsidized apartment complex.

Better enforcement the goal

Bureau counsels police agencies

by DAVE IBATA

The five-person think tank occupies unassuming quarters on the third floor of an Arlington Heights office building. However, the fruits of its labors have triggered improvements in police departments throughout Illinois.

The Police Service Bureau, 120 W. Eastman Ave., near downtown Arlington Heights, has served dozens of Illinois police agencies as a privy counselor.

Since its creation in 1972, the bureau, directed by John D. Madl, has undertaken more than 120 projects, ranging from the organization of traffic records to hiring of new police chiefs.

"WE ARE REALLY of the police and for the police, said Madl, a 34½-year veteran of the Chicago Police Dept. The McHenry resident retired from his post as deputy superintendent in 1972 to assume directorship of the fledgling bureau.

Madl put to use knowledge acquired while serving under the administration of the late Chicago Police Supt. O. W. Wilson. "An outstanding police administrator," Madl said of Wilson. "A good man and a great tutor."

Madl built a staff of specialists, hiring an attorney, a communications engineer, a computer expert and a retired police chief.

Under its $194,940 grant, the bureau, a division of the Illinois Assn. of Chiefs of Police, offered its services to Illinois communities for a fee of $175 to $200 a day. Cities put up 40 per cent of the costs and the state assumes the remainder, Madl said.

THE BUREAU receives funding from the Illinois Law Enforcement Administration, which funnels money allocated by the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to recipients in the state.

"The PSB operates with a small staff, but provides extensive coverage of general and specialized interests of police agencies," Madl said.

In addition to its in-house staffers, Madl said the bureau has access to independent management and engineering experts and technicians. "Thus, we are prepared to cope with the vast majority of problems facing police administrators," he said.

Projects undertaken by the bureau have included a crime laboratory study for the Northwest Police Academy in Arlington Heights, a manpower analysis for Schaumburg and interviews and evaluations of policemen eligible for promotions in Hoffman Estates.

A PROJECT in the works is a study for adding a second radio channel within the Central Dispatch System, a police dispatch network based in Arlington Heights and serving several Northwest suburban communities.

The bureau often is asked to evaluate entire police departments, Madl said. The bureau compares police service to standards set by the Illinois police chiefs' association and the American Bar Assn.

Scrutinized are a department's internal organization, the legality and effectiveness of its policies, the efficiency of its operations, and the adequacy of its support services.

If requested, the bureau follows up studies by aiding departments in implementing recommended changes, Madl said.

"You identify a necessary function, and then ensure the function is accomplished," Madl said.

MANY SMALLER communities, however, cannot afford the bureau's services. Madl has requested that the Illinois General Assembly set up the bureau as a state agency, with full funding of all projects. That way its services would be provided free.

"We feel the improved productivity and performance will result in savings throughout the state and offset any small costs the agency will incur," Madl said.

Madl said his request was approved by the Illinois House last year but died in the Senate. He explained, "We were defeated, but things were so difficult they (the state) were cutting back budgets all over."

Madl predicts more optimistic prospects for approval during the next legislative session because of the enthusiasm that has been expressed about the bureau.

The bureau's grant ran out Monday. However, profits garnered from past projects will enable the bureau to continue operating through March 1977. Madl said he expects to obtain an extension of the initial grant through September 1977. By that time he plans to have the bureau accepted as a state agency — free for the asking to any Illinois city.

Scouts to honor five area women

Five Northwest suburban women will be honored as "heroines" of the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County at the Scouts' fall recognition dinner Nov. 9 at the Arlington Park Hilton.

They are State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter; Dr. Elfriede Horst, pediatrician; Jeannie Morris, sports telecaster; and Mary Radmacher, director of the Skokie Public Library.

Films on handicapped at confab

New approaches for assimilating handicapped people into their communities will be shown in a series of films at the 1976 national Easter Seal convention Nov. 9-12 at the Palmer House, Chicago.

Films showings are free to the public and will be from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. Nov. 9 and 10 and from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m., Nov. 11 and 12.

Subjects include accessible housing for the handicapped, diagnosis, research and treatment of disabilities, recreational activities and treatment of children with learning disabilities.

Real estate license test review Nov. 17

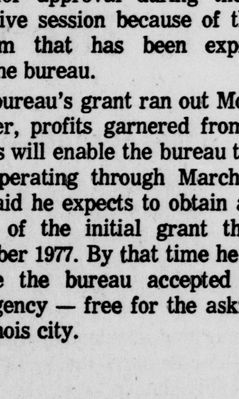

The State of Illinois will give examinations in Chicago during the week of Nov. 15 for those seeking real estate salesman or brokers licenses. The Lifelong Learning Division of Harper College has scheduled a review session to prepare prospective licensees for the state exam.

The all-day session begins at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 13, on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

Tuition is $25 which includes coffee, lunch and all materials. For registration information call 397-3000, Ext. 410 or 412.

Chicago man arrested for possession of pot

Arlington Heights police Monday morning arrested a 21-year-old Chicago man for trespassing at a village high school and possession of narcotics.

Patrolman Thomas Kopp, police counselor at Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid St., arrested Charles E. Spaeth at 9:30 a.m. Monday after Kopp discovered Spaeth sitting in an east hall of the school, police said.

A search of Spaeth produced a plastic bag of marijuana, police said. Upon searching Spaeth's auto parked near the school, police found two more plastic bags of marijuana, a 35-m.m. film canister containing marijuana, a peyote button and narcotics paraphernalia, police said.

Police chared Spaeth with felony possession of marijuana, possession of peyote and trespass. Spaeth was released on $5,000 bond and ordered to appear Nov. 19 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

November blood drive

Residents are urged to donate blood in November to compensate for the donation lag that usually occurs during the holiday season.

The Arlington Heights Health Dept. has scheduled four blood drives this month: Sunday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at St. James Catholic Church, 841 N. Arlington Heights Rd.; Nov. 14 from 11:15 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Evangelical Church, 1331 N. Belmont St.; Nov. 18 from 3:30 to 7 p.m. at Thomas Junior High School, 303 E. Thomas St.; and Nov. 27 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at St. Edna's Church, 2525 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

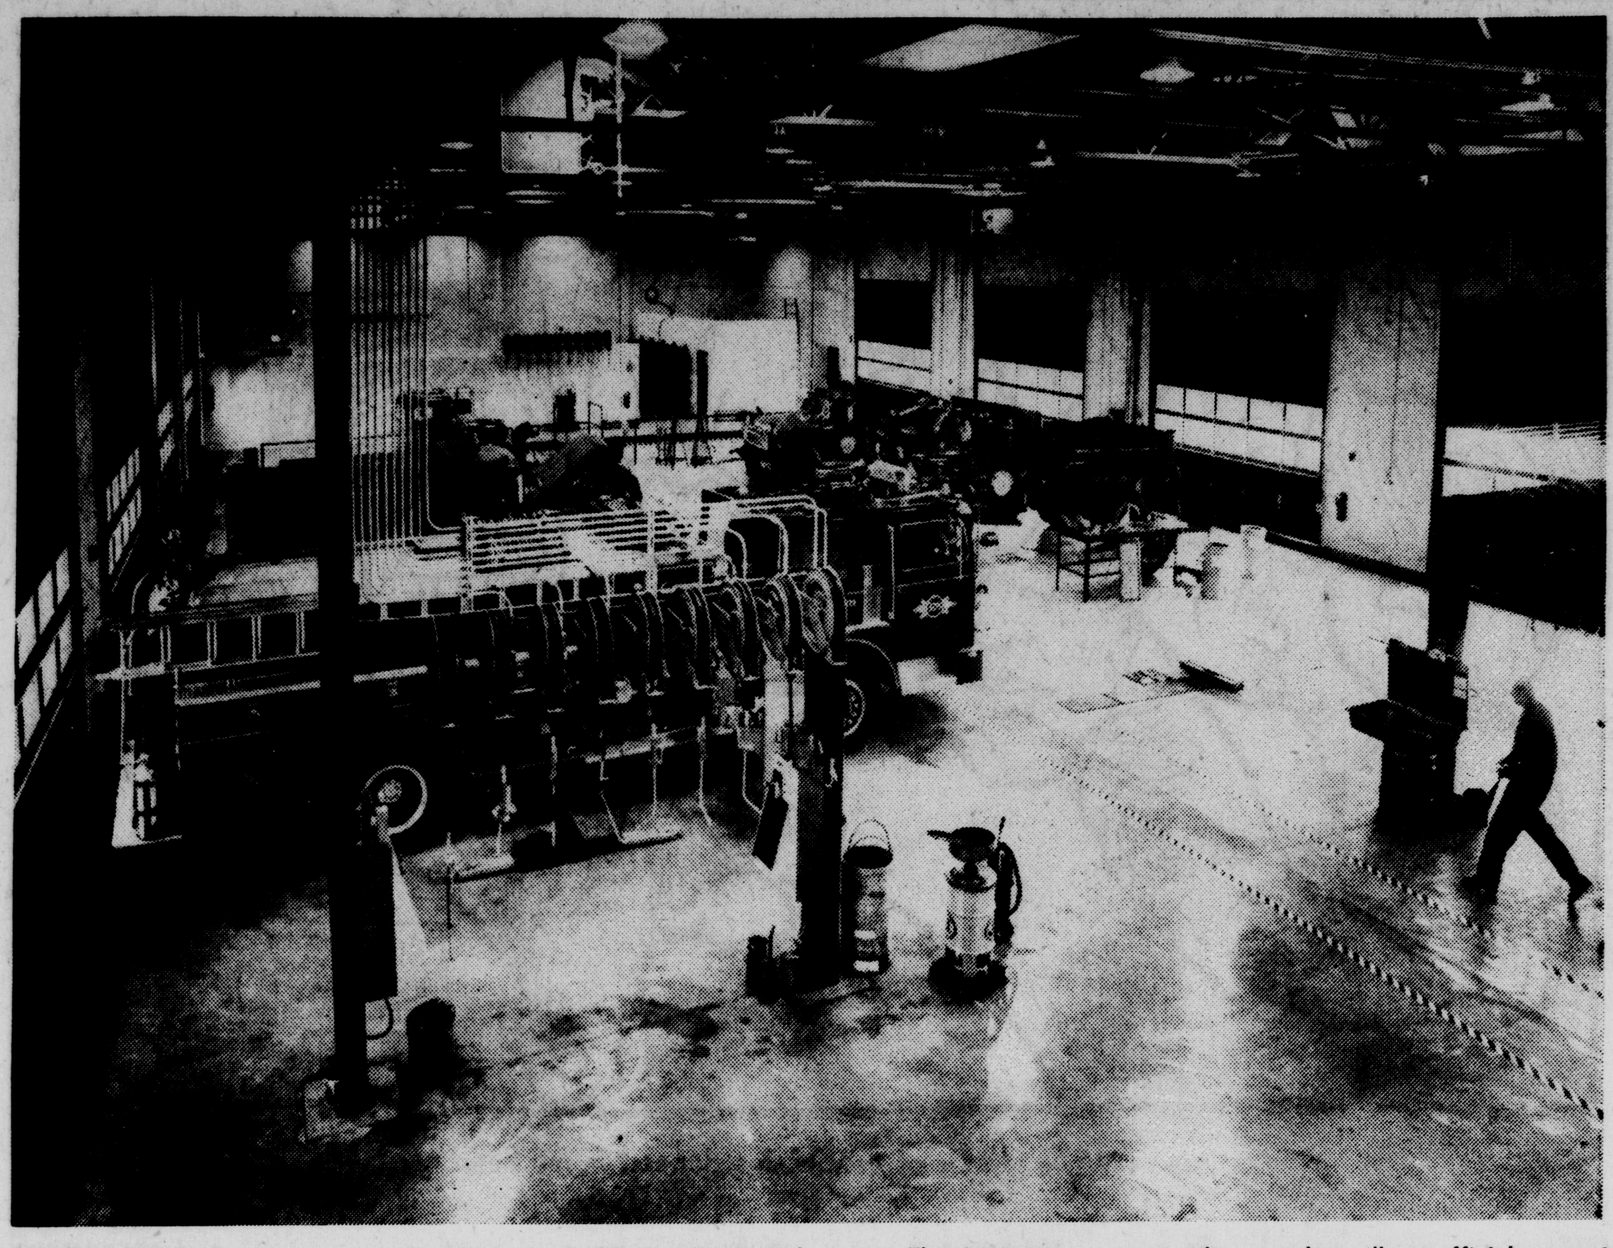

To schedule an appointment, call the village health department, 253-2340, ext. 245.

Child psychologist talk set

Child psychologist Cecelia Brocken will discuss "Me and My Children: An Interactive Approach" at Theology West, at 9:15 a.m. Nov. 9 in the St. Edna parish center, 2525 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Ms. Brocken is director of the pediatric psychology program at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center.

The fee for the lecture is $3. Babysitting is available for children 2 years and older at $1 a family.

FIRE TRUCKS in for repairs no longer push other maintenance jobs into snowbanks because of the village's new public works building, 222 N. Ridge Ave. The $750,000 facility was controversial when first proposed because it meant extending the 5 per cent utility tax, but village officials expect the building to provide a savings in the long run.

Hersey High School's mathematics department, a participating member of the Atlantic-Pacific Mathematics League, has announced the top 10 student entrants in the first of a series mathematics contests.

The 10-member team winners are Mark Battaglia, Chuck Frankiewicz, Jim Heideman, Tom Piatkowski, Hugh Sisson, Terry Stepek, Brian Robertson, Lily Trofimott, Joe Velisek and Jim Wozniak.

The format for each contest consists of six problems to be completed within 30 minutes. The subject matter will be drawn from all areas through precalculus mathematics. Also included will be number theory, logic and supplementary topics.

For more information call Lothar Peistrup, 259-8500, Ext. 75.

Esther Fink, a teacher at Hersey High School, Arlington Heights, has been appointed by the American Institute for Foreign Study to accompany a group of students abroad on an educational travel program.

Students will study with tutors while visiting cities such as London, Amsterdam, Brussels, Paris, Geneva, Florence and Rome.

Students interested in participating in the study program can call Miss Fink, 965-3161.

St. James School

St. James School will hold its annual "tip-off" games 7 p.m. Friday in the parish center, 820 Arlington Heights Rd. The sixth graders will compete against the seventh graders and the eighth graders against the faculty in the kick-off games for the basketball season.

Kirk Center

Parents and Teachers of Handicapped Students sponsored a Fuller Brush demonstration Monday at Kirk Center, 520 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

Persons wishing to purchase Fuller Brush products may call the school, 359-3100, through Nov. 17.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase special adaptive equipment to meet the handicapped childrens' needs.

St. Viator High School

St. Viator High School is sponsoring a fund raising event with a 1977 Oldsmobile Cutlass-S or $3,000 being given away as first prize. Second prize is a microwave oven or $300 and third prize is an escape weekend for two at Lincolnshire resort hotel or $200. Tickets are available from St. Viator students for $1.

Winners will be announced at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 11 at St. Viator, 1213 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights. Winners need not be present.

Additional mechanics needed: Willroth

Village's garage sizably empty

by BILL HILL

Now that it's finished, the Arlington Heights public works garage doesn't look particularly controversial — just brick and mortar formed into an L-shaped building.

The brown doors and light brick make it compatible with the other public works buildings at 222 N. Ridge Ave.

The building is occupied by four mechanics in the long wing with its 10 stalls and welding area. A shorter wing has three separate areas, all empty.

THE GARAGE'S SIZE fueled opposition two years ago when plans for the building were announced. Opponents said it was too big and too expensive. Proponents contended the space was needed and the garage could save the village money by enabling village employes to handle costly maintenance repairs.

Adding to the controversy was the question of whether the village's controversial 5 per cent utility tax should be extended 10 months to finance the building.

A special citizens committee decided the building was needed but suggested cutting its size slightly. Subsequently, the cost of the project was reduced from about $800,000 to $750,000.

But still, much of the building is empty. Gene Willroth, director of public works, says additional mechanics are needed to take full advantage of the garage.

"We've got the building. Now, over the next few years, we have to build up our manpower to go into a first-class maintenance program," Willroth said.

"Eventually we'll be able to do much of the specialized work that we now pay private shops to do, such as automatic transmission work and front-end alignments," Willroth said.

That in itself will provide a savings for the village, but the greatest financial benefit will come after the public works department has enough mechanics to initiate a preventive maintenance program, Willroth said.

"RIGHT NOW WE MUST do repairs on a crash basis. You can't put a dollar value on how much this building will enable the village to save until we start a preventive maintenance program and cut down on the number of road calls and emergencies," he said.

But some benefits already are being realized. No longer are mechanics forced to do maintenance work outside on the village's 200 vehicles.

"We used to have to do some jobs over in the snow bank," Willroth said.

Until the new garage opened in August, public works mechanics had only a small area in one of the existing buildings with space for two vehicles. Now they have the space for 16 vehicles.

But, village officials are learning it takes more than brick and mortar to keep village vehicles in working order. There is still the need for more mechanics and equipment.

For 60-home development

Board, builder agree on plan fee

Miller Builders agreed to pay a $15,000 land dedication fee Monday night to get village board approval of its plans to build 60 homes on a 16-acre site bounded by Kennicott, Haven and Kaspar streets on the southern edge of Arlington Heights.

The land had been zoned for multi-family development.

The Arlington Heights Park District had demanded that Miller Builders pay $27,000, and the developers had offered to pay only $12,000 before the village board meeting where the $15,000 agreement was reached.

Park annex talks set

Village officials and representatives of the Arlington Manor Homeowners Assn. agreed to meet to discuss the annexation of three parcels north of Carefree Park, so the park can be annexed to the village and patrolled by Arlington Heights police.

Williams Sales of the homeowners group complained to the village board that vandals use the park and cannot be arrested by village police because the park is in unincorporated Cook County and under the jurisdiction of the county sheriff's office.

The park is located north of Lincoln Road, between Arlington Heights Road and Douglas Avenue.

Police to patrol parks

The board accepted the recommendation of its community services committee to direct the police department to patrol parks within the village limits and enforce park district ordinances.

"Because of the police department's manpower shortage, the police can't make special runs, but as they're making their rounds past the parks, the police should be alert to any special problems," said Trustee Robert Miller, chairman of the community services committee.

In the past, Arlington Heights police have not gone into the parks to make arrests.

Police chief salary set

The village board awarded a salary of $30,000 to Robert Derks, who took over as the village's police chief Oct. 18, succeeding L.W. Calderwood, who retired in June. Calderwood was receiving $27,900 annually when he retired.

An agreement with the architectural firm of Loebl Schlossman & Hackl also was approved by the board.

The contract calls for the Chicago firm to submit plans for a new police and fire building with approximately 30,000 to 50,000 square feet.

Restaurant plans OKd

The board approved plans for a Red Lobster Restaurant at 129 W. Rand Rd. and Roto Lincoln-Mercury at 1400 Rand Rd.

The Red Lobster request also required annexation and a special-use permit.

The Herald opens the door to real estate values... every Thursday.

Watch group to meet Wednesday

The Neighborhood Watch organization will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday to discuss use of Citizens' Band radios in conjunction with the program.

The meeting will be in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

An article for those who voted

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When you read this, there still should be time to vote. If you have not voted, stop reading and go do it; the rest of what follows here is not written for you.

Americans who voted today are to be congratulated. By doing so, they performed an act of faith in the face of a national cynicism that sneers at the mere suggestion that the election process has any relationship to the improvement of the human condition.

It is too bad. Voting used to be a happy duty in the United States. To vote now requires a fortitude similar to displaying good manners in public places, such as giving up a bus seat to an elderly person. It happens, but so infrequently as to be remarkable.

There is reason for citizens to be angry about what has been done to them and their country by government and government officials. People have been lied to and cheated. Their money has been wasted and stolen. They have been ignored and misused. It is not hard to make the argument that Americans who refuse to vote simply do not want to play sucker anymore.

Yet, failing to vote denies the possibility that matters can be made better. It is a kind of civic catatonia, a turning away from the world and pretending that nothing can be done to improve anything. Society may be sick, but people who give up on their own lives when they still have some means to improve it may be sicker still.

But this was to be for people who did not drop out, the voters of 1976. Now that they have done their duty, what rewards can they expect for their virtue?

None. Voting confers an important piece of the decision-making action on individuals, nothing else.

Those who want more say must do more work. If they want their elected representatives to represent them faithfully, they have to let public officials know what they want. That means everything from writing letters to joining pressure groups. That means sounding off when government officials do something they don't like.

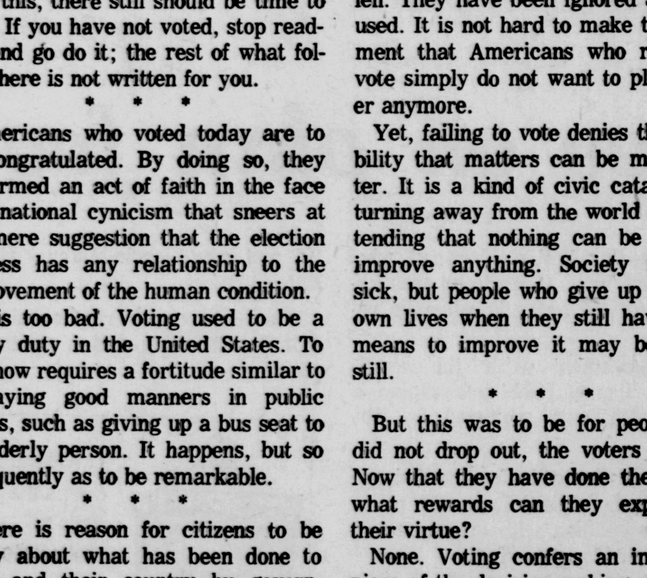

Does citizen action work? Yes. It was the people who were willing to spend their time and money and risk their reputations by marching in demonstrations who started the chain of events that got the United States out of Vietnam. It was the public outrage at the Saturday night massacre that started Richard Nixon's final plunge. In these and other recent episodes, the politicians only followed the people.

Ordinary citizens don't get prizes for getting involved. They may get better government if they take an interest, but they will get poorer government if they don't. William James wrote more than 75 years ago:

"The deadliest enemies of nations are not their foreign foes; they always dwell within their borders. And from these internal enemies civilization is always in need of being saved. The nation blessed above all nations is she in whom the civic genius of the people does the saving day by day, by acts without external picturesqueness; by speaking, writing, voting reasonably; by smiting corruption swiftly; by good temper between parties; by the people knowing good men when they see them, and prefering them as leaders to rabid partisans or empty quacks."

The lighter side

There is nation filled with the likes of George Apathy

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I heard a political analyst say on television the other night that the most important factor in this year's campaign may be apathy.

I wasn't sure what he meant by that, but I assumed he was talking about my cousin, the late George Apathy.

When I refer to cousin George as "the late," I don't mean he is dead. I just mean he is never on time. If he bothers to show up at all.

Considering George's aptitude for listlessness, it was difficult for me to believe he could be an important factor in anything.

But you've got to figure those guys on TV know what they're talking about. Otherwise, they wouldn't be getting paid all that money. So I decided to pay a call on my cousin and find out how he had managed to become a political power.

"George," I said, when he finally came to the door, "are you the Apathy they're talking about on television as being a key element in the election?"

"I suppose so," George said, "although I haven't thought much about it one way or the other."

"How did you happen to acquire so much influence?"

George slumped down on the sofa and tucked a couple of pillows under his head.

"Through political indifference," he replied. "All during this campaign I have steadfastly maintained a posture of nonpartisan torpor. I have been equally unstirred by both candidates."

"How could that have any impact on the election?"

But George had fallen asleep. I shook his shoulder and repeated the question.

"Sorry," he said, "Any mention of this year's presidential race makes me drowsy.

"To answer your question, my impact on the election lies in my intention not to vote at all. By not having enough interest in the outcome to go to the polls, I am making it more difficult for the experts to tell how the election will turn out.

"Furthermore, by not voting I am likely to thrust victory upon a candidate who would not otherwise have won."

Amazingly, the Democratic party is asking the American voters to put their Presidential candidate in the White House. In seeking your vote, the Democratic party, the party of the big time spenders, the party of World War I during the Woodrow Wilson administration, the party of World War II during the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, the party of the Korean War during the Harry Truman administration and, last but not least, the party of the Vietnam war during the Kennedy-Johnson administration, is asking you to overlook their most obvious weakness in overcoming the temptation of keeping our boys off foreign soil.

The real clincher is that the Democratic party brags about the low unemployment level during these wars. It kinds of makes me wonder how Carter plans to realize his dream of strong economy and low unemployment — World War III?

We believe that the current push to make abortion the one issue on which to choose a political candidate is a destructive path which must be harmful to the wellbeing of our nation.

We are therefore appealing to all voters, but especially to our fellow Catholics who may not approve of abortion, to reject this narrow polarizing effort.

Our country is now faced with enormous problems such as unemployment, crime, international unrest, and above all, a loss of confidence in our elected officials. It is extremely important that we choose our leaders at all levels with great care, giving a high priority to such standards as integrity, experience, and a deep commitment to good government.

To reject a candidate with these kinds of qualifications, or to support one who lacks them, on the basis of a disagreement on either side of a particular social or moral issue is unhealthy and shortsighted, and in the long run, cannot possibly be beneficial to the country.

The process of elections under this democracy of ours serves the people in the surrounding community. The people, therefore, vote for those who represent their ideals and values. Under this pretense, The Herald is absurd by claiming that U.S. Rep. Phillip M. Crane does not know the issues. If The Herald would be right in their assumption that Phillip Crane doesn't know the community, the people or the issues, he would not have been re-elected several times with gross overwhelming majorities. By the use of logic, The Herald is wrong. People like, vote and place their trust in Illinois No. 1 congressman, Phillip M. Crane.

After reading Mary-Jane Snyder's letter on Planned Parenthood's view of abortion, several questions persist.

Aren't we to care at all about all those babies being eliminated? Don't they count for anything? Aren't we to question a court that legalized this practice? Aren't we to ask about the undermining of the family unit that takes away the authority and responsibility of parents in regard to their children's welfare?

Wasn't our country founded on religious grounds? Aren't the children of today the hope of tomorrow?

I am writing this letter in order that you may share my feelings with your readers concerning conservation issues as they relate to the presidential election.

The public statements of Ford and Carter lead me to say firmly that if Carter is elected there will be a stronger, deliberate effort by the executive branch of our government to give priority to resolving the present misuses of our natural resources.

Mr. Carter's view on land use planning is also to his credit. He favors federal assistance to states who show, by their planning, that critical environmental areas will be protected.

She urges support of Soviet Jews

I am writing to express my concern over recent reports of beatings of Soviet Jews who wish to leave the country for Israel or America.

Jews who have expressed a desire to emigrate from the Soviet Union have suffered unbearable discrimination, which in recent years has just come to the attention of the public. Those who apply for a visa automatically lose their jobs, are blacklisted and are denied university education; often families are divided forcefully and the odds of their being reunited are very low.

However, all of this seems minor when compared to actual beatings; these are not wild animals seeking revenge, but only innocent people trying to obtain the freedom which many of us take for granted.

I urge the President, U.S. senators and representatives to find some means of expressing the horror of our country in observing this shocking new development in the history of Soviet Jewry.

Reductions for some policy holders

Allstate slates new auto rates

by LEA TONKIN

Revamped auto insurance rates effective Monday mean 10 to 20 per cent reductions for some Illinois policy holders and 15 to 20 per cent rate hikes for other groups of customers, Allstate Insurance Co. announced.

Although the combined impact of changes announced by the Northbrook-based company will be a premium reduction of some $511,000 for 1976, Allstate continues to report substantial losses in its property and liability lines of coverage.

Industrywide losses in the property-liability lines including homeowners, auto and other types of coverage, present a "very grim" outlook, commented Ron Howarth, a representative for the National Assn. of Independent Insurers, Des Plaines. "Even though the outlook is improving, there is absolutely no hope for widespread reductions in rates," Howarth said Monday.

THE NEW ALLSTATE rates, announced Sunday, affect 569,000 autos in Illinois, California, the District of Columbia, Ohio and 22 other states. The insurance company said applications for the new rates have been filed and other applications will be filed shortly.

Rate reductions of 10 to 20 per cent will be given to 22.4 per cent of Allstate's policy holders in Illinois. Increased rates will affect 13.5 per cent of the company's customers, with 15 to 20 per cent higher bills for collision and comprehensive coverage.

Allstate said the revised rates continue to reflect vehicle use and driving characteristics of the policy holder. New considerations are "loss experience reflecting damageability, repairability and theft."

Lower rates will be offered, as new policies are issued or old policies renewed, on these models: Chevrolet Impala, Caprice, Chevelle, Malibu and Nova; Dodge Dart, Aspen, and Monaco; Plymouth Valiant, Volare, Grand Fury Fury and Satellite; Oldsmobile Omega, 88 and 98; all Chryslers; Buick Apollo and Skylark; and Pontiac Bonneville, Catalina and Grand Ville series.

Higher rates for property damage coverage were posted for: Lincoln Mercury Marquis, Monterey and Cougar; Pontiac Firebird; Ford Thunderbird; Oldsmobile Toronado; most Cadillacs, Volkswagen and Datsun models; all Fiat, Porsche and Saab models; and some Honda, Mazda and Renault subcompact cars.

NAN KILKEARY, a representative for Allstate, said the firm reported first half loss in 1976 on property and liability lines of more than $124 million. The figure compares to the loss in the first six months of 1975 totaling $152 million and total 1975 loss of $256 million.

Ms. Kilkeary said auto insurance rates can be expected to increase at an average rate of 1.5 times the rate of inflation. If the inflation rate is 6 per cent, rates will rise 9 per cent, for example, to reflect auto repair, medical and other costs.

The consumer should compare auto insurance rates among several companies, said Ronald Anderson, branch manager at the Unigard Insurance Group office, Arlington Heights. He said the only category of property-liability coverage which is generally higher than others includes the "high performance" cars.

Comparison shopping is also advised by Ronald Howarth of the National Assn. of Independent Insurers. Howarth noted wide fluctuations in auto insurance premiums changes within the past two years.

"There's no way of telling" what rates in 1977 will do, Howarth said. Widespread industry losses on property-liability coverage continue, however, an indicator of potential future rate hikes.

Combined losses reported by U.S. insurance firms in property-liability coverage amounted to $4.2 billion in 1975, Howarth said. Approximately 40 per cent of this amount is accounted for by auto coverage.

Industry loss ratios indicate a loss of $8 for every $100 taken in during 1975, and a less severe loss of $6 per $100 worth of business during 1976, Howarth said. The U.S. property-liability losses accumulated during the first half of 1976 amounted to $1.9 billion, of which $800 million is in auto lines. The 1974 industry loss for property-liability coverage totaled $2.6 billion.

New features on '77 Datsun 280-Z

THE DATSUN 280-Z features restyled bumpers, wheel covers and an optional five-speed transmission for 1977. Buyers can choose the standard four-speed manual transmission or a three speed automatic.

A five-speed overdrive transmission, stylized wheel covers and restyled bumpers are among the new features on the 1977 edition of the Datsun 280-Z auto.

The 280-Z is powered by a fuel-injected six-cylinder engine. Buyers can choose a standard four-speed manual transmission, a three-speed automatic or a new five-speed.

The Datusn 280-Z is offered in two versions, a coupe and a "2 plus 2." Standard equipment includes features such as power-assist brakes, AM-FM radio with power antenna and reclining bucket seats.

Suggested retail prices for the 280-Z with the standard four-speed transmission are $6,999 for the coupe and $7,999 for the 2 plus 2.

Folger coffee up another 5c a pound

The Folger Co., the nation's second largest coffee wholesaler, Monday raised regular ground coffee prices by 5 cents a pound in the third round of increases in less than a month. The Folger Co., based in Kansas City, Mo., said the price hike — its eight this year — is effective immediately and stemmed from "recent increases in imported green coffee prices." In New York, the National Coffee Assn. said green coffee prices have soared 177 per cent since July 1975 when a severe frost destroyed 70 per cent of Brazil's 1976 coffee crop and triggered a meteoric rise in U.S. wholesale coffee prices. Brazil is the world's largest coffee producer and supplies 60 per cent of all U.S. coffee imports. On Oct. 6, Folger, a division of Procter & Gamble, raised ground coffee prices by 15 cents a pound. The company announced a price hike of 1 cent an ounce on its instant coffee Oct. 21. General Foods Corp., the largest coffee wholesaler, boosted ground coffee prices by 15 cents a pound Oct. 12, following the Folger move. General Foods has announced five increases so far this year.

Senate starts work on farm bill

Acting on orders from Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., of the Senate Agriculture Committee, Senate farm aides have begun drafting a proposed new farm bill that would base crop supports on farmers' production costs. The draft, which presumably will be used as a framework for committee decisions on the actual shape of a new farm law next year, reportedly would set support "target prices" for grains and cotton at the full cost of production. Crop loan rates, which are used in combination with the target price system, would be pegged at about 80 per cent of production costs in the preliminary draft proposal, sources said. Senate experts warned, however, that it was too early to say specifically what this plan would mean to farmers and consumers in terms of actual price floors.

New Eagle market to open Nov. 9

An Elk Grove Village Eagle Discount Supermarket will open Nov. 9 at Rohwing Grove Center, Rohlwing Road and Devon Ave. A grand opening ceremony will start at 9 a.m., said Lee Roush, vice president of Lucky Stores, Inc. and regional manager of Eagle's Midwest region, said the site was chosen because of "its vigorous growth and healthy business climate." In addition to food items, the store will feature a fresh plant and floral department, hardware, gift, personal care and apparel items.

Dow gain slight in moderate trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, battling profit takers, posted a small gain Monday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange, where investors appeared to be as uncertain as the pools about the outcome of the Presidential election.

Because the market will be closed for the election Tuesday, a number of traders spent the day adjusting portfolios.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down nearly four points at the outset and ahead about three early in the afternoon, managed to gain 1.16 points to 966.09. The average gained 26.18 points last week, including 12.30 Friday, and this made blue chips susceptible to profit taking.

THE NYSE common stock index gained 0.11 to 55 and the average price of a common share increased by 7 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.20 to 103.10.

Advances topped declines, 821 to 578, among the 1,893 issues crossing the tape. The 494 unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty.

Volume totaled 18,390,000 shares, up from the 17,030,000 traded Friday.

Warner Communications topped the Big Board active list, gaining 5/8 to 24-3/8 on 306,900 shares. Late Friday, the firm said the Securities & Exchange Commission had qualified its application to swap stock for certain debentures. Also the firm permanently closed its Jungle Habitat amusement park in New Jersey.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & Telegraph was the second most active Big Board issue, up 1/8 to 61½ on 247,400 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 61¾. American Brands followed, off 3/8 to 41½ on 210,400 shares, including a block of 200,000 shares at 42.

General American Oil climbed 3¼ to 50¾ after the company declared a 3 per cent stock dividend. Trading in the stock was halted in the last hour because of an influx of orders.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex market value index gained 0.15 to 99.03. There was no change in the price of an Amex share. Volume totaled 1,730,000 shares, compared with 1,750,000 traded Friday.

Last ragtops—better bets than blue chips

by EDWARD S. LECHTZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — The American convertible has joined the running board, hand crank and rumble seat in automobile museums.

But as an investment, the 1976 Cadillac Eldorado convertibles — the last of the ragtops — probably are better bets than most of the blue chip stocks. There were just 14,000 built and the last 200 — the identical Bicentennial models — are really where the action is.

Some folks are out to make a few bucks. Others just like ragtops. A few have more altruistic motives.

LELAND CAMPBELL, 57, a retired contractor who lives in Whitmore Lake, Mich., bought four of the regular Eldorados and one Bicentennial.

He paid $15,000 for the Bicentennial, a white model with red and blue accent stripes, white leather and vinyl interior and red trim and carpeting. Its list price was $12,300.

"I bought them because I feel they are probably the best investment a man can make — better than real estate," Campbell said. "The Bicentennial will probably sell for about $140,000 before long."

That still may be a bit high, though.

THE BICENTENNIAL models are bringing about $40,000 now at most of the auto auctions and few of the regular '76 Eldorado convertibles are selling for less than $20,000.

In Providence, R. I., Don Lind of Criss Cadillac, said his firm got just one of the last 200 Bicentennial models and intends to keep it.

"It's a classic in its own right," Lind says. "We've had several offers on the car. It only retails for less than $13,000 but the offers have been in the range of $50,000, $60,000 and even $70,000."

MUCH OF THE speculation has been between the Cadillac dealers themselves.

"There's been almost more of a market between dealers than a retail market," says Raymond Morris, president of Metropolitan Cadillac in downtown Milwaukee. "The dealers seem to be buying from each other."

And the king of the convertible dealers now seems to be Don Massey, a Cadillac dealer in the Detroit suburb of Plymouth. He now has a stock of nearly 40 ragtops left of the close to 800 he bought straight from the factory or from other dealers.

MASSEY FIGURES his current stock is worth close to $1 million.

"I bought whatever ones I could and paid whatever I had to because I feel they are good merchandise," Massey says. "If people want them, I make them available at a reasonable price."

Massey paid one dealer $105,000 for five convertibles and $70,000 for four others. He paid $35,000 for one Bicentennial model and thinks it eventually will be worth more than $100,000.

IF THAT'S SO, John Roach Jr., of Roach Cadillac in Kansas City, is going to make good use of the one Bicentennial model he got. He's turned down several offers and plans to donate it to the University of Kansas Endowment Assn. which will auction it off in December.

"The proceeds will be a gift to them," says Roach.

Many of the Cadillac dealers sold the last convertibles at list price to regular customers to make sure they'll come back in the future. And some others are not sure there's a real market anymore.

"IT'S KIND OF cold and quiet now," says Jack Bacon of Hillcrest Cadillac in Beverly Hills, Calif. "This fantasy of high prices is among dealers and some collectors, not the public."

An Atlanta, Ga., classic car dealer, said the going price for any but the Bicentennial models was up around $20,000 a few months ago, but has now dropped to a more realistic $15,000 range.

Bill Day, a Beatrice, Neb., dealer, said he expected the market to soften a bit.

"AFTER A CERTAIN group of collectors get theirs and get them stored away, the market is bound to soften," Day said. "Of course, it takes only one person willing to pay a higher price to set the market."

Loman Brown, sales manager of Nolan Brown Cadillac in Miami Beach, Fla., said he had one customer who resold his 1976 model for $30,000 to someone in Las Vegas.

"He frequents Vegas a lot and I guess he was shooting off his mouth about having a convertible and this guy took him up on it," Brown recounted.

IN DALLAS, investor George Reeves bought two. They won't be driven for a while though since one is for daughter Julie on her 16th birthday — still 15 years and nine months away — and the other for a son, still just a dream.

"I knew I had to do something so Julie would see what the old life (circa 1976) was like," said Reeves, who was distressed that his daughter might reach adulthood and never see a convertible or a 5-cent bottle of Coke.

He bought the one convertible for $13,000 and put it on blocks in his garage with plans to present it on her 16th birthday. Then he bought the second ragtop.

"I GOT TO thinking that my wife and I are planning to have another child," Reeves says. "I want a son. But you can't give to one without giving to the other."

Some people are busing the Caddy convertibles just because they like them. Take the case of Manny Winston a 60-year-old Laconia, N. H., resident who has been driving converibles since 1939.

"I just like to put the top down and enjoy all that open air," Winston says. "When it gets warm enough, I like to put that old top down.

"IT'S THE SAME reason I like being in a boat," he said. "I wouldn't own a boat with a hardtop on it."

But a lot of the folks who have been buying the open air models haven't been using them much.

Massey, the suburban Detroit Cadillac dealer, has them stored on his property and has guard dogs and an elaborate burglar alarm system. His security bill has gone up $1,000 monthly.

IN MARION, ILL., Wayland D. Sims, owner of a home furnishings and interior decorating business has a 1975 model that he bought new and is holding to see how much its value increases.

"I keep it in the garage most of the time and usually only drive it only enough to keep the battery charged," Sims says. "I'm sure it's already worth more than I paid for it."

Bill Goethe of Nolan Cadillac in Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. C. N. Nelson of Dallas share a common problem — fear of having their convertibles damaged.

Goethe bought one for his own use last November, but now says his wife is reluctant to drive it.

"IF IT IS destroyed in an accident, it could not be replaced and no insurance company would reimburse me for the car's real worth," Goethe said.

In Dallas, Mrs. Nelson says she doesn't know anything about the car becoming a collector's item. Her husband bought it simply because she liked it.

"I got to drive it just one time and then someone told my husband how much the car would be worth someday," Mrs. Nelson said. "They also told him it had to be in perfect condition. So now, we're afraid to drive it.

"THERE WE ARE with a new $13,000 car and we have to sit and look at it in the driveway," she said.

"A lot of other people with those collector's items are doing the same thing."

While the American convertible may be a collector's item, there still are some other ragtops around.

Fiat offers a sporty two-seater and Volkswagen its old reliable Beetle softtop. At British Leyland, the MGB, MG Midget, Triumph TR6 and the Triumph Spitfire open air models accounted for 64 per cent of the 52,220 cars that British importer has sold so far this year.

AND, OF COURSE, there's the epitome of the open air models — the $67,500 Rolls Royce Corniche convertible.

There have been just 90 sold in this county so far this year. Officials with the British auto firm are quick to assure you that people whose only thought is to make money are not the prime buyers.

"They are resold and we know when they're resold and who has them," an official said. "In fact, we can't get enough. They are desirable and the people who are buying them are not buying them for resale purposes. They're buying them for themselves."

Smog closes in on sales of convertibles

DETROIT (UPI) — Why aren't there any more U.S.-built convertibles?

You would think, with all the excitement and inflated prices being paid for the 1976 Cadillac Eldorado ragtops — upwards of $50,000, that every automaker would still be building them.

But if they did, there probably would be only a few takers.

The first cars were convertibles. In the early days of motoring, Americans were reluctant to accept an enclosed car. Now they prefer them.

Air conditioning, the vinyl roof and government safety regulations are most often blamed for the demise of the convertible. With Americans driving longer distances on smog-filled freeways, the open air car became less attractive.

The last, a white Cadillac Eldorado — a Bicentennial model — rolled off the assembly line shortly before noon last April 21. It was the last of 14,000 '76 models, a sharp drop from the open air car's peak popularity in 1965 when 510,693 were built. In 1975, the number was down to near 37,000 — hardly a moneymaking venture for an industry noted for its close watch on the profit sheet.

A WORKER installs a door panel on the last of the U.S. convertibles — a Cadillac Eldorado being assembled April 21, 1976 in the corporation's home plant in Detroit. The soft top was put on permanent display in Cadillac headquarters.

DON MASSEY, suburban Detroit Cadillac dealer, has almost cornered the market on Cadillac convertibles — the last of a long breed of ragtop models. Massey has 40 convertibles in stock in Plymouth, Mich., and estimates their value to be $1 million.

Give older cars a boost with electronic ignition

by CLARENCE ZAITZ

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A college professor says you can get better mileage and cut pollution on your old car.

Dr. William D. Guentzler, associate professor of the Department of Industrial studies at San Diego State University, bases this contention on research he has done.

It simply shows gasoline mileage on older cars can be increased by as much as 20 per cent and pollutants decreased considerably with installation of electronic ignition systems.

Most new cars have such systems. Older ones don't. A kit to install one in an older car can be purchased for $50. Guentzler said the handy home auto mechanic usually can manage the installation.

GUENTZLER SAID he feels so strongly about the value of installing electronic ignitions in older cars, he has been pushing for a state law to require them.

But, since electronic ignitions are not required in older cars, Guentzler said car owners should consider their advantages against some other factors before deciding to put them in.

On the plus side, in addition to better mileage and less pollution, are more time between needed tune-ups, increased spark plug life and elimination of breaker points in the distributor.

Just two miles a gallon in better mileage would cover quickly the investment in the new ignition for a car driven 12,000 to 20,000 miles a year. But the driver also must consider whether he will keep the car for a while or whether the ignition unit he installs can be adapted to another vehicle.

GUENTZLER GOT into the project because of a request from a local official, San Diego County Supervisor Lou Conde. Conde has called on the state resources board to heed the results as another option for meeting air quality standards.

"With a 5 per cent cut here and an 8 per cent cut there," Conde said, "we can put together a package which will save a lot of energy and pollutants."

As for the project itself, Guentzler used three different types of electronic ignition systems on 18 different student cars. They ranged from a Datsun to a Cadillac. There were four, six and eight cylinder models. Some had standard transmissons, some automatic.

All vehicles were given a pre-tune-up diagnosis, including replacing of wires, points, etc., if required, and a post-tune-up diagnosis before installation of the electronic ignition systems. After several months of city driving the vehicles were given a comprehensive review of exhaust emissions and economy of operations.

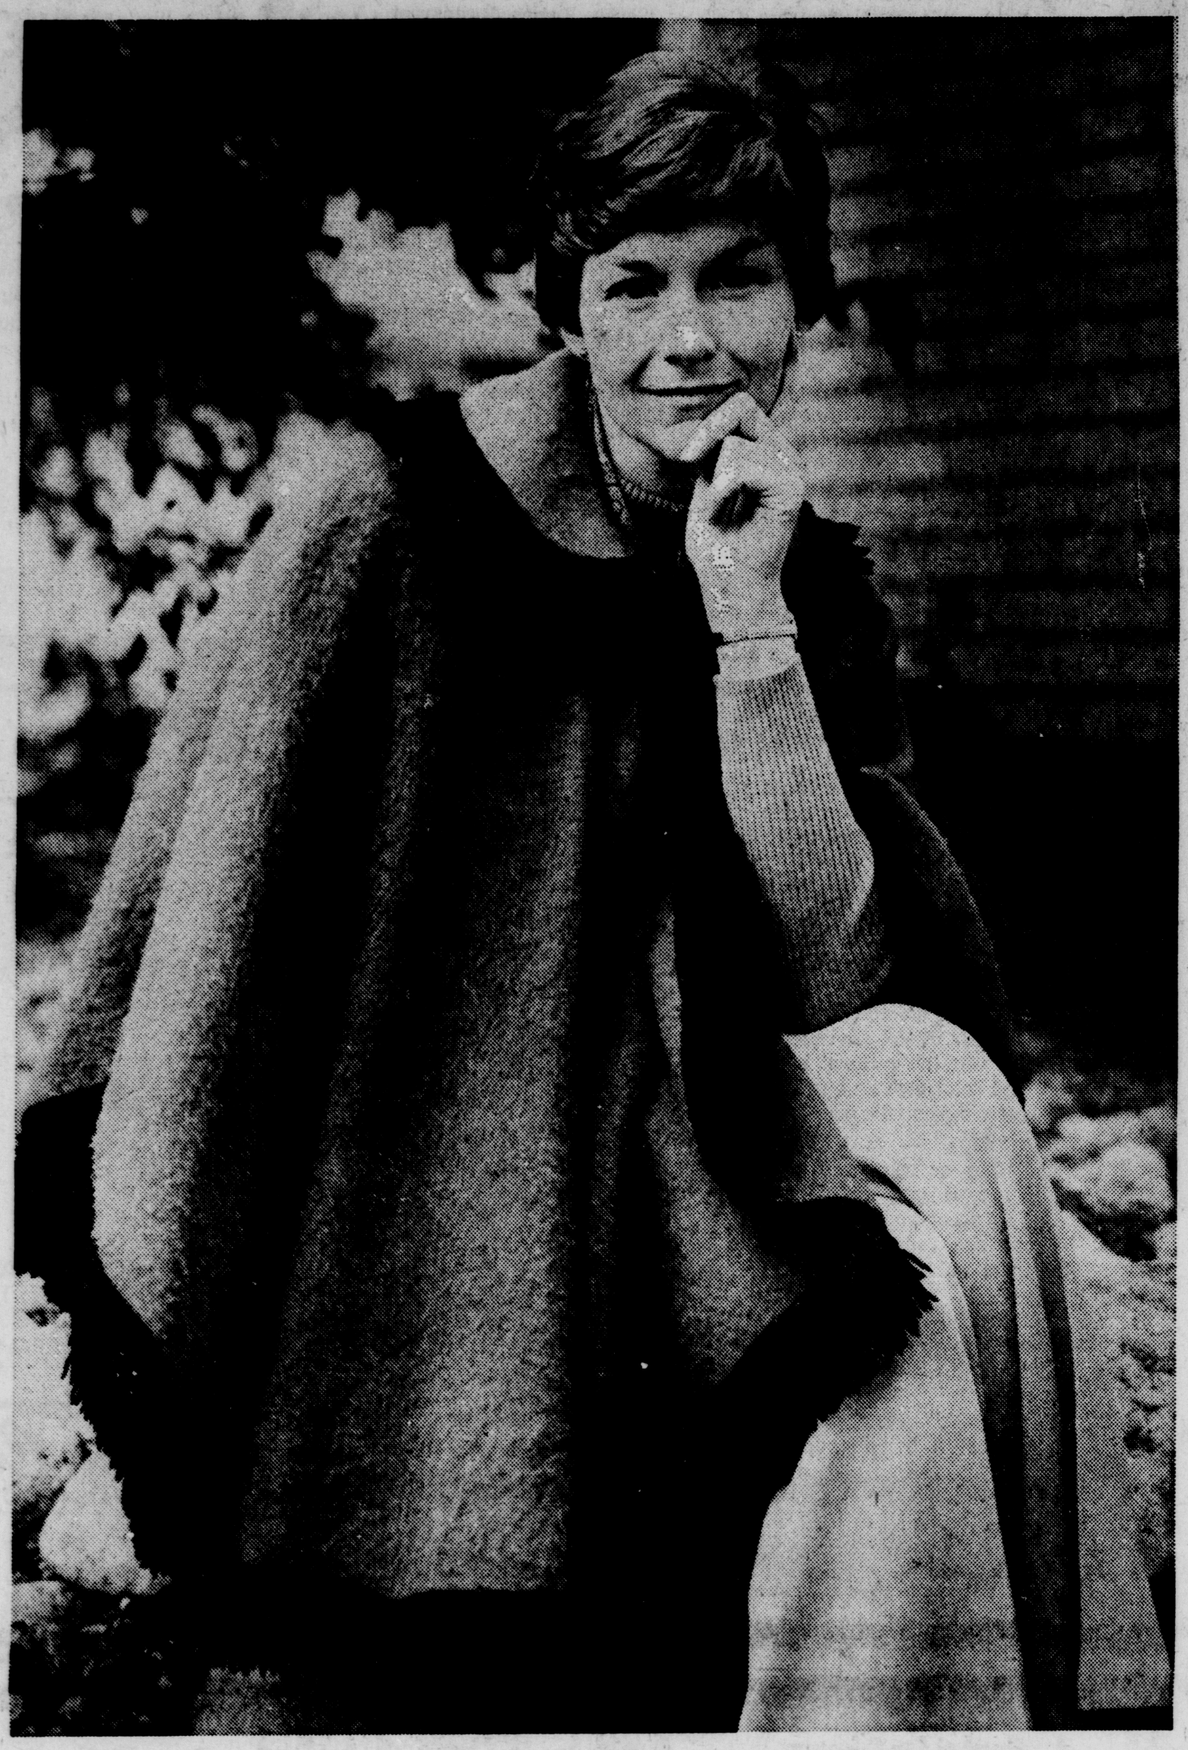

THE CONCLUSION: All achieved improved gasoline mileage, increased horsepower and reduced emissions.

Spark plug gap is another thing that has a great deal to do with improved mileage, Guentzler said. That is an area that needs to be researched more thoroughly.

"I personally think that we need to do more research in the field of spark plug gaps and joint utilization with the electronic ignition system to improve the overall economy of engines on the highway today," he said.

FOR DRESSY evenings out or by the fireside at home, this triangle shawl of heavily slubbed wool is a feminine topper. It features knotted fringe of matching yarn, added with crochet hook. Secret pockets in the ends hold tissues, lipstick.

BLANKET WOOL CIRCLE in bright red is trimmed with black wool fringe to create this poncho. Braided edge of purchased fringe covers up-turned raw edges, gives finished edge to underside.

THIS FABRIC only looks handwoven. The loose weave allows one to pull threads for self fringe, added with crochet hook. Teamed with matching skirt, it makes for an attractive ensemble.

You'll flip over

Capes, ponchos, shawls

by MARIANNE SCOTT

From the bundles of mail arriving at the Herald office these days it looks as if everyone in town will be flipping a flip cape over their own shoulders or under a Christmas tree for someone on their gift list.

But no matter. With the many choices in fabrics and the many choices in trims, no two are apt to be alike.

The cape pattern is offered periodically in Eunice Farmer's Monday sewing column, but I had made one earlier after seeing it in a Woodfield shop. I sewed mine up first from an old sheet to get the best arm hole placements. Eunice's pattern and mine differ in arm hole size and placement, but those wishing hers may send for it (address and instructions at end of article). I find mine hangs better and therefore describe it here.

WITH CAPES, ponchos and shawls no longer gimmicks but the final layer for fall and winter, the capes will make welcome gifts. Likewise ponchos and shawls.

These toppings are red hot sellers in the shops (but you can make them easily) and will add interest to holiday wear as well as interest to gift giving for every woman on your list from 2 to 92.

The cape is a one-size-fits-all for adults. Choose a 54-inch fabric that is reversible. Buy 1½ yards and cut it into a 54-inch circle. A little extra may be needed for matching plaids.

TO CUT, fold your fabric in half, and halfway down the fold mark off 27 inches. Remember your school days of using a string as a compass? Well, measure off 27 inches on a string, hold it taut at the halfway mark on the fold and mark your half circle; then cut both layers. Folding in half saves you the trouble of marking off a whole circle. (For arm slits see diagram on next page.)

Stay stitch around the edge of the circle and the arm slits to prevent stretching. Add your trim around the circle edge, finish the arm slits and you're done. Put your arms through the slits and flip back the "collar."

A super easy trim is fold-over braid. You'll need about five yards plus additional for the arm slits unless you just hem them. You can also buy fringe by the yard or you can make your own fringe from matching yarn. Be sure to turn up raw edges of the fabric and stitch near the outer edge before adding fringe. Braided edge of fringe will cover the turned up edges.

If matching yarn to the fabric is difficult, you can make fringe from yarns pulled from the left-over fabric, plus about 12 inches extra fabric. This takes longer, but looks nice. You can also crochet around the edges.

THE FLIP CAPE is very versatile and looks great over dressy things as well as sportswear. It can also be used as a blanket, a throw or car robe.

An easy poncho can also be made from a 54-inch circle. Just cut a rounded neck opening in the center of the circle. (Use neckline from dress or blouse pattern.) If you don't like putting things over your head, slit the poncho in front from neck to hem, add a zipper and perhaps a collar.

Easiest of the shawls to whip up are the long oblongs and the shaped triangles made from interesting fabrics and then fringed. They go well over day and evening fashions, add warmth when needed and are a high fashion touch.

If you have the time and inclination, you can add your own or iron on embroidery. A sheer shawl trimmed with sequins will add glamour to most any evening gown.

SHAWLS CAN BE made in most fabrics from wools and blends to velvets, satins and silks. Check the ready-made for ideas, and perhaps shapes.

Capes and ponchos usually fall into the warmer category and are made from heavier fabrics. Those made from fabrics that look much the same on both sides so they don't have to be lined are easiest.

While circle capes and ponchos need no patterns, these garments can be made in other styles, and patterns are available. Since shapes don't vary much over the years, you can also cut your cape or poncho from an old garment. If in doubt, make it up from an old sheet before cutting your fabric.

Whatever shape, whatever fabric, capes, ponchos and shawls are fun gifts to give and merry gifts to receive. Furthermore, they make a long-lasting gift that can be worn, not only through fall and winter, but into spring and even summer.

Know sales terminology

A wide variety in quality of merchandise can be included in clothing sales, according to Marjorie Mead, University of Illinois Extension clothing specialist.

To be sure the sale purchase is a bargain, you need to examine the merchandise carefully and understand "sales" terminology.

"Irregulars" — indicates that there may be imperfection in color, size, or fabric construction. These imperfections will not necessarily affect the wear of the garment and are not always visible from the outside of the garment. Ms. Mead advises that you discover why the garment is "irregular" and determine its effect on your use before making the purchase.

"SECONDS" — MAY have some mend, tear or run, or a color loss which may or may not affect wearability or acceptability. These imperfections are usually visible. Again, find them and assess their impact for you.

"Sample Merchandise" — refers to merchandise used by manufacturers as samples to show their lines to retail buyers.

"Fire Stock" — is clothing that has come from a building damaged by fire. These items have not necessarily been damaged at all.

"Odd Lots" — left over merchandise that is out of style, no longer being made or of different sizes (broken sizes).

Knowing what these terms mean could save you money, concludes Ms. Mead.

Enjoy facials? Try using a man's badger-bristle shaving brush for a stimulating and skin-saving experience.

The narrow-hipped woman who carries her weight above the waist will get a more balanced look wearing clothes that are tailored and have simple lines.

For a pickup in the office, keep a bar of perfumed soap in your desk — in a plastic case, of course!

It's easy to overlook toenails, but keeping them trimmed regularly — straight across the toe — can help to prevent ingrown toenails.

Gold is in in accessories. A narrow braided gold belt, or a touch of gold at the ear, adds a warm, attractive touch.

Ask Andy

Wasp nests are paper material

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Kenny Frank, 16, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for his question:

HOW DO WASPS BUILD THEIR NESTS?

Although most wasps are solitary insects that live and work alone, there are some species that live together in a colony. These are the papermakers of the insect world and include the hornets and the yellow jackets. Their nests are constructed of old wood and tough plant fibers. Using an ample amount of saliva, the materials are chewed up into a feltlike material and molded into cells.

Some of the papermakers build a single flat comb under the eaves of a sheltering roof, or attach it to a tree limb. Other nests are shaped like a football and hung on a branch. They wrap it with layer upon layer of their homemade paper until the entire nest is covered with a waterproof shell.

Unlike a bee colony, the social wasps' colony lasts only one year. The job of producing a new colony falls to a crop of young queens that spend the winter sleeping in a saf spot.

Hundreds of wasps prefer to live alone. These are the solitary wasps, and they include such craftsmen as masons, carpenters and excavators. By itself, each female has to choose the right place, locate the right materials to build her nest and then provide food for the larvae.

A mason wasp uses its saliva to mix a moist mortar of mud and stones. It may plaster it on a stone in an open field, and after drying it becomes hard and sturdy.

A miner wasp digs tunnels into the ground to rear its offspring, while a carpenter wasp digs a neat row of cells in a tree trunk. The mud daubers use their saliva and mud to plaster their nests on the underside of a roof overhang or some other protected spot. Dozens of trips are required to construct the tubelike apartments that house its eggs. Potter wasps make dainty nests that look like urns.

Andy sends a Studenet Globe to John Marshall, 9, of Kingston, Ont., Canada, for his question:

DOES A CENTIPEDE ALWAYS HAVE 100 LEGS?

No, the centipedes, or "hundred leggers," do not always have 100 legs. In fact, few of them have exactly 100. A centipede's body is made up of a number of segments and looks like a slightly flattened caterpillar.

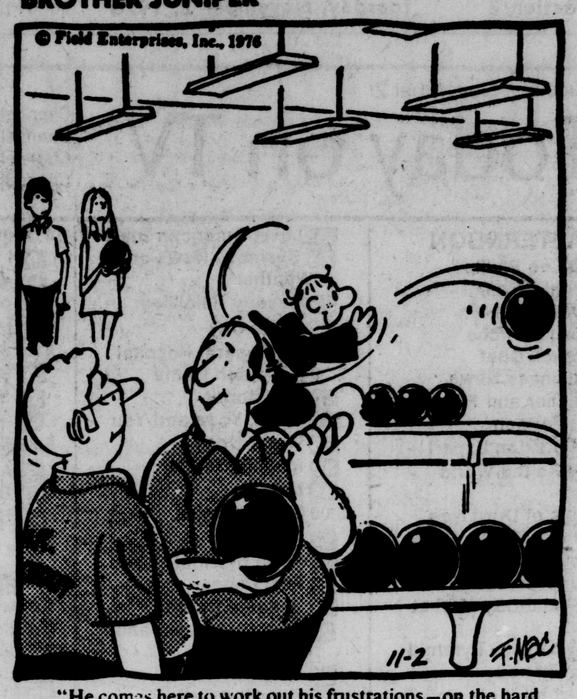

Each segment bears one pair of legs and the number of segments varies from 15 to more than 170. This means that a centipede can have from 30 to 340 separate legs, depending, of course, on which branch of the centipede clan he belongs to.

Most centipedes possess poison which they use to kill their prey — usually slugs, insects and earthworms. The smaller centipedes generally are harmless to humans, but those in the tropics may grow 10 inches long and are capable of inflicting a painful bite. Centipedes live in moist environments and can be found in loose soil, decaying wood, dead leaves and under stones. House centipedes like dark, damp cellars, where they lie in wait for flies and other insect treats.

Ghost story 'Innocents' fails to instill enough fear

by GLENN CURRIE

Even Harold Pinter, the master of understated menace, has been unable to inject the necessary thrill into "The Innocents," William Archibald's dramatization of Henry James' novel "The Turn of the Screw."

The latest Broadway production of "The Innocents," starring the eternally beautiful Claire Bloom, opened last week.

Pinter has directed it at a deliberate pace, eliminating intermissions, and has Miss Bloom play the terrified young governess as quietly as if it were one of his own plays. But it doesn't work. Archibald is no Pinter as an author, and the old ghost story fails to either convince or to instaill fear.

THE STORY is that of two young orphans, brought up by an absent uncle in a huge English mansion in the late 19th century. They supposedly are in thrall to a dead valet who, together with his mistress, corrupted them in life — presumably sexually. The new governess senses the evil in the house, tries to exorcise the ghost of the valet, and the young boy dies in her arms.

Barring a complete rewrite by Pinter himself, one way to handle the theme might be to follow the example of "Harvey." That venerable comedy got nowhere as long as they presented the six-foot booze-conjured rabbit on stage; as soon as the rabbit was relegated to the audience's imagination, all was well.

Similarly, the physical presence in "The Innocents" of the ghosts of the two dead characters who are supposed to have corrupted the governess' two young wards somehow lessens the overall effect. By eliminating them, and leaving it ambiguous as to whether the whole thing is just the product of a sheltered young woman's febrile imagination might add the missing menace, and make the final curtain more of a shock.

Miss Bloom is excellent as the governess, within the confines of the director's ideas. Her fears are expressed more in the familiar curve of her back than in her words. Pauline Flanagan as the housekeeper does much to create the mood in the old house, but the two children do little more than recite their words.

John Lee Beatty's set is excellent: a high-ceilinged hall dominated by huge windows and a solid gloomy staircase leading to unimagined mysteries in the remote parts of the house.

Early deception aids theft

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

South looked over dummy quickly and saw that his slam contract was a mighty poor one. Then he set about to steal it.

He led a trump to dummy's ace and a second trump back to his king. Then he led a low diamond!

If West had played his king it would have been all over for South, but West wasn't quite up to that play at that early stage of the proceedings. West played low!

Now South rose with dummy's ace, cashed his ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart in dummy, discarded a diamond on the king of clubs, ruffed dummy's last club, led a diamond and made his contract since West was thrown in with the king of diamonds and had to lead a heart or a club to allow South to ruff in dummy and discard his last diamond at the same time.

Maybe West should have put up that king of diamonds at his first opportunity. He probably would have done just that if South had stripped the hand before leading the suit, but South made his play early and it worked.

Garner's rough if network acts tough

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — NBC told Jim Garner to change his television series last year. Garner told the network to go to hell.

Garner is like that — independent, sure of his ground and tougher than Jim Rockford, the private eye he portrays on TV weekly.

These stellar qualities are responsible for "The Rockford Files" beginning its third year as one of NBC-TV's strongest series.

"SOME OF THOSE GUYS wanted changes made and they hadn't even seen the show," said Garner. "I told them we would do it our way or not at all."

Jim (part Cherokee Indian) owns Cherokee Productions, which produces "The Rockford Files." When he goes head-to-head with the network or Universal Studios, where the show is filmed, his adversaries deal with more than just an acetor.

Garner knows that for every successful series there is a star who fights for his show every inch of the way.

Danny Thomas, Jack Lord, Telly Savalas, Bobby Blake are a few who save their shows from committee decisions, which may lead to cancellation.

EACH STAR has a differenet style of running his show. Lucille Ball was almost single-handedly responsible for the length of her series.

"I leave the scripts to Meta Rosenberg, my partner, and to Steve Cannell," Jim said. "What I fight is production. I keep production going.

"For example, there are 26 units shooting at this studio right now. You've got to fight for space, equipment and transportation. Fortunately, I've got my own crew of top people and I hang onto them.

"IF A STAR just shows up and reads his lines, the show won't last a season. The only one who takes a beating when a show fails is the actor.

"The producers, writers, directors and stagehands simply go to work in other projects. The star, however, is stuck."

Garner's biggest battles are with NBC's Standards and Compliances Department — the censors. Garner says the blue pencil guys are harder on his series than any other.

"There's a definite double standard for violence on television," Garner said. "They have one set of rules for series and another for movies that are shown on the tube.

"They refused to allow us to show Rockford being knocked down by a judo chop to the neck. It was okay to film the heavy start the blow, but then they wanted us to cut to Rockford falling to the ground without the hit being seen.

"Yet I tuned in 'Magnum Force' and there was Clint Eastwood blowing up everybody on the screen with guns. In 'Walking Tall' they had a guy running around with a club bashing in people's skulls.

"These same guys forbid any character pointing a gun at Rockford. Are you ready for that?

"There's even a triple standard at the network. 'Police Story' and 'Police Woman' get away with a hell of a lot more than we do.

"SO I FIGHT them all the way down the line. I don't believe any network executive should be allowed to cut and edit film. I do my own cutting on the set by selecting what will be shot and what won't be shot.

"I have a terrific film editor who takes caret of thet cutting when we've completed each episode.

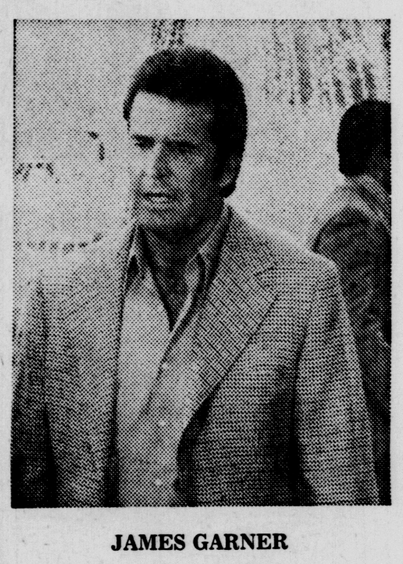

"I have more faith in my judgement than in corporate executives. That's why I'm in charge of 'The Rockford Files.'

"Look at it this way, I've been making episodic television for almost 20 years — going back to 'Maverick.' I was deeply involved in that series while most network executives, who weren't even in the business, were only watching it."

GARNER IS AS GOOD a businessman as he is an actor. He's branching out into other series projects. While he may not be a pussycat to deal with, NBC likes his style.

The network has shown a 90-minute pilot show of "Scott Free," a new Cherokee production.

"I think it's got a great chance to become a series," Garner said. "And you can bet I'll go to bat for that show too."

Harper offers travel-study trips

Harper College will offer two travel study trips to Europe this summer.

A trip to Eastern Europe and Russia will depart June 27 returning July 25 after visits to Amsterdam, Helsinki, Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, Budapest, Vienna and Paris. The cost of the trip is $1,626 and includes all meals, lodging and transportation.

The second tour will visit England, France, Spain, and Switzerland. The tour leaves July 6 and returns Aug. 3. The cost for the trip is $1,465.

Primarily adult trips, both tours are open to all members of the community. Persons interested in taking either trip for college credit may aarn up to four liberal arts credits.

Call Martha Simonsen 397-3000, ext. 326 or 285, or more information or applications for either trip.

Opportunity Center open house

The public is invited to an open house at the new offices of the Northwest Opportunity Center, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The open house will be from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday. Officials and staff will explain the center's social service programs, and refreshments will be served.

The Opportunity Center moved to the former North School building at the end of the summer.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Large aspirin dose prolongs bleeding

Prolonged use of arthritic drugs produced such undesirable side effects that I was hospitalized with an irritated pancreas. An internist advised liberal use of Ascriptin (aspirin with Maalox). I have read that large doses of aspirin cause bleeding of the stomach and intestines. Please advise me as to the soundness of large doses of Ascriptin for control of arthritic pain and soreness.

Ascriptin is aspirin with Maalox as you stated. As such it is "buffered," meaning it helps prevent the aspirin from irritating the stomach, at least to some small extent.

Aspirin will burn or irritate tissue if a small piece of it is allowed to remain in contact with tissue for a period of time. You can help prevent this problem by crushing it and putting it in a half cup of milk. Or, you can take it with food. This means it will not be absorbed as rapidly and its action in relieving pain will be delayed. However, the action will last longer.

It is true that aspirin will prolong bleeding time. That is why its use in preventing strokes and heart attacks is under study. It would probably also help prevent any of the clotting tendencies that occur in some women taking birth control pills. The lower rate of heart attacks and strokes in patients with arthritis taking aspirin was one of the early tip-offs that aspirin might be useful in this regard.

I CANNOT recommend the use of aspirin to prevent heart attacks at this time. The value of the medicine for this purpose as opposed to its hazards is now undergoing a massive national study. After that is done, you will have a good answer about its usefulness and limitations.

Two ordinary (five grain or 300 milligram) aspirin tablets will double the bleeding time for as long as seven days. For this reason anyone who has any medical problems associated with bleeding should not use aspirin in any form. This includes people with peptic ulcers or any tendency to bleed from the digestive system. Women should not take aspirin in any form for at least two weeks before delivering a baby.

If you do not have any problem that might be associated with bleeding, the use of the aspirin is not likely to cause you any problems — to the extent that it may have some beneficial effects in preventing heart attacks and strokes — it may help.

ASPIRIN REMAINS the best all around medicine to relieve pain in joints or muscular aching as commonly occurs in degenerative arthritis — the kind you get as you get older. You do not need to take large doses for this effect.

In much larger doses, prescribed by a doctor, it can be used to decrease inflammation as it occurs in rheumatoid arthritis. How much you take depends upon what is being treated. There are a number of medicines on the market that will relieve pain and can be used for osteoarthritis, but which do not decrease inflammation and cannot be used for that purpose in treating rheumatoid arthritis.

To give you more information about aspirin and related medicines you might want to use to relieve pain, I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, Aspirin and Related Medicines. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex. 78292.

Vanilla for cat odor may leave rug stain

Dear Dorothy: Read about a remedy for animal odors in carpet — using cheap vanilla. Recently had my bathroom recarpeted. Promptly, my cat urinated on it and continues to do so periodically. The carpet is orlon or an acrylic and I believe it has an odor which may attract the cat. Would the cat odor be eliminated by dousing with vanilla and still not damage the rug? — Barbeur G. Wise

It's unusual to hear that a cat would abandon its litter pan for a fresh spot. Anyway, vanilla probably will remove the odor, but it could leave a stain. Aside from the commercial removers (a list of which I am sending to those who send self-addressed, stamped envelopes) many readers have reported success with such odors by allowing a large amount of baking soda or the kitty granules to stay on such spots from one day to a week. I'd urge that before the vanilla.

Dear Dorothy: We like chocolate pudding the way our mother used to make it, using baking chocolate, milk, eggs, sugar and cornstarch. But even though we stir and beat ours vigorously while cooking, there are bits of undissolved cornstarch in the pudding. What can we do to prevent this? — Elsie Watmough

Sugar and cornstarch need to be mixed thoroughly before being added to the liquid ingredients. Also, with cornstarch it's important not to overbeat or overcook. Until you get the hang of it, you'll do better to use a double boiler which serves to cover up small errors.

Dear Dorothy: Whenever I see people hit a bottle of slow ketchup with a fist I like to tell them to tap the neck of the bottle (about an inch from the opening) firmly against a forefinger — two or three taps — and presto, the ketchup will start coming. — Charlotte Stevens Holtman

Arlington AAUW holds book sale

Eight months of collecting, sorting and marking will culminate in a used book sale at Randhurst this weekend (Nov. 5, 6 and 7), sponsored by Arlington Heights Area Branch of the American Association of University Women. The AAUW book tables will be located at the Montgomery Ward side of the shopping mall in Mount Prospect.

A large selection of hard cover, paperback, fiction, non-fiction, texts, manuals, encyclopedias, Reader's Digests, old editions and children's books will be available, as well as records and sheet music.

A feature repeated from previous years is a "bargain hour" from 4 to 5 p.m. Sunday, when $1 buys all the books that can fit into a shopping bag provided at the sale.

Proceeds go to a fellowships fund and a Harper scholarship awarded each year by the AAUW branch.

Des Plaines LWV

As one election comes to a close, the League of Women Voters of Des Plaines sets its goal on procedures leading to next year's election. Two unit meetings are planned for Wednesday in which the group will study, discuss and analyze various proposals for primary elections. Marge La Vine will lead the discussion.

She will be hostess Wednesday at 8 for the evening meeting. Betty Wolfe will host the morning unit at 9:30, with babysitting provided.

New members of the Des Plaines League since September are Marge Kaminiski, Patricia Majewski, Elizabeth Dlouhy and Joseph Weller.

Information 297-8695 or 824-0094.

Park-Plaines Secretaries

Park-Plaines Chapter, National Secretaries Association, will hold its monthly meeting at Drake's Carriage Room, 625 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge, Nov. 3 at 7:30 p.m. Speaker will be Bruce I. Veltman, nutrition researcher for Kraftco Corp., whose topic is "Food Additives — Helpful? Harmful?"

Membership in Park-Plaines chapter is open to secretaries employed or residing in northwest Chicago or the surrounding suburbs.

VFW Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary of VFW Post 981, Arlington Heights, meets Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the clubhouse. The Auxiliary and members of the post entertained the veterans at Downey Hospital Friday evening, also bringing them men's clothing and paperback books.

Altar and Rosary

The Altar and Rosary Society of St. Cecilia Church, Mount Prospect will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Parish Hall. A chorus of teachers from Mount Prospect District 57 Schools will present a selection of patriotic songs. The recently completed Parish Hall building will be open for inspection.

Homemaker extensions take decorating jaunt

Members of area Homemaker Extension units will be traveling by bus to South Holland Monday, Nov. 8, for a program on "Decorating for the Holidays — Advent thru Twelfth Night." Demonstrator will be Harold C. Cook of Cook's Gifts and Decorative Accessories of Dixon, Ill.

Buses will leave from the Farm Bureau building in Rolling Meadows and South Park in Des Plaines. Information regarding the $3 program tickets and transportation is available by calling the Rolling Meadows Extension Office, 991-1160.

Palatine Newcomers party

Reservations are due next Monday for the evening of fun, good and games planned by Palatine Newcomers Club. The Las Vegas Night party will be held Saturday, Nov. 13, in the Plum Grove Club, where a cash bar and buffet will be provided. Cost is $5 per person and those wishing further information may call Barb Mathes, 991-4882.

Happenings

Sell goodies at lunch

Immanuel Lutheran Ladies Aid, Palatine, will hold its annual fall luncheon and bake sale Thursday, Nov. 11, in the school cafeteria, Wood Street and Plum Grove Road. Serving times will be 11, noon and 1 p.m.

Tickets are $2.50, available at the door or from aid members. Evelyn Hinz, 359-0663, has further information.

Church Women United host Community Day

World Community Day, sponsored each year by Church Women United, will be celebrated Friday by two area units, Des Plaines and Northwest Cook County.

The 1976 theme, "Into the Third Century - Unafraid," highlights the Bicentennial and focuses on the need to build a world community of interdependence in which we can live without fear.

THE DES PLAINES unit plans a morning program Friday, with registration at 9:30 a.m., in the First Congregational Church, 766 Graceland Ave.

The featured speaker will be Mrs. John H. Muir of Oak Park, president of CWU in Illinois, whose topic is "Do Our Dreams Really Include a Global Society?" Mrs. Wayne Batey, chairman of the woman's fellowship of the host church, will also participate.

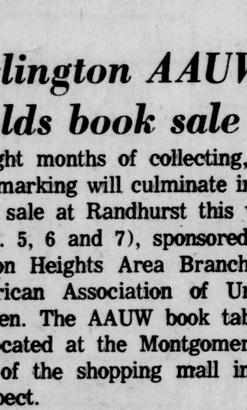

A potluck luncheon served at noon follows the program. Afterwards the unit will present a check to the new local senior citizens center, the donation coming from last spring's May Fellowship Day offering.

NORTHWEST COOK COUNTY churchwomen will gather Friday at 1 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church of Palatine, 800 E. Palatine Rd. A procession of banners from various churches starts off the service. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Linda Jones, a member of the Church Committee for Human Rights in Asia and a former missionary in Korea.

The Northwest group will also have an opportunity to see a display of craft items representing many countries. All will be on sale and proceeds will go to those who made them.

Members of all area churches are welcome to both programs. Sitter service will be available.

Wedding bells in their future

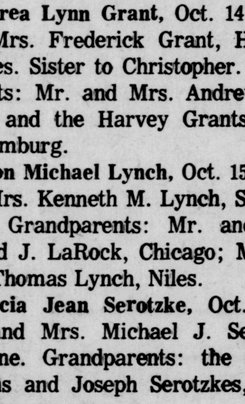

Bukar-Schroeder

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bukar of Arlington Heights announce the engagement of their daughter, Joanne, to Richard Schroeder, the son of Mrs. Janet Schroeder of Wheeling.

The couple plan to be married in April.

Joanne, an employee of Safeco Insurance in Schaumburg, is a 1975 graduate of Buffalo Grove High School. Richard was graduated from Wheeling High School in 1974.

Beutke-Folkerts

Mary Ann Beutke, resident of Arlington Heights and a beautician at About Hair in Palatine, has become engaged to Lyle Folkerts, son of Mrs. Doreen Folkerts of Flanagan, Ill. and the late John Folkerts.

Mary Ann's parents, the Wallace Beutkes of Long Point, Ill. announced the engagement.

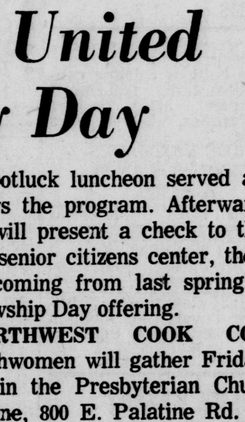

The bride-to-be is a graduate of University Beauty College, Bloomington, Ill. Her fiance works for Folkerts Trucking in Flanagan. They will be wed in late November.

Hess-Blueck

A December wedding has been planned by Pamela Hess and Douglas Glueck, whose engagement was announced by Pamela's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Hess of Palatine. Douglas is the son of the Edward Gluecks of Wheeling.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Fremd High School and works at Allstate Insurance in Northbrook. Douglas, a graduate of Wheeling High School, is employed by Chicago Commutator in Wheeling.

Mello-Bachus

Nashville, Tenn., will be the scene of the January wedding of two Elk Grove Village employes; Carol Rose Mello, a community service officer in the police department, and Michael William Bachus, swim coach for the park district.

Carol's parents, the George P. Mellos of Elk Grove Village announced the engagement. Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bachus of Nashville.

Both young people are 1972 graduates of Elk Grove High School and attended Harper Community College.

States find laws against smoking hard to enforce

by United Press International

Nonsmokers have made some progress in protecting themselves legally against tobacco smoke but they haven't exactly come a long way, baby.

That is the finding of a United Press International survey of no-smoking laws in the nation. Thirty-one states have laws of various degrees covering smoking in public and semipublic places.

In building elevators of many cities and in city buses, some restaurants and public meeting places, signs are posted to protect the non-smoker from having his senses — and possibly his health — invaded by tobacco smoke.

BUT ENFORCEMENT of the no-smoking regulations may leave something to be desired.

For the nonsmoker, conditions have slightly improved within the past five years, although not all state legislatures have enacted no-smoking laws.

The habitual smoker can get into trouble in a few spots, and there may be more banned areas in the future. Unless he goes South, that is. The tobacco states have not joined the ban-the-smoke movement, and a popular bumper sticker in North Carolina urges the reader to "Enjoy Smoking."

GEORGIA, HOWEVER, is an exception. In 1975 it passed a law against smoking in an enclosed public elevator and in public vehicles or any areas used by the public. The law is voluntary unless stiffened by a fire marshal order. Its legislative sponsor, Rep. Hank Elliott, says, "I'm not sure the state has the right to tell people where they should smoke or not smoke."

Among the major cities, Chicago has a special "smokers' court," first authorized in 1954, but much busier since a crackdown began last July on smokers in buses and elevated trains.

CHICAGO'S COURT has been handling about 120 cases a month since then, with fines of $25 for a first offense in the form of a $50 fine with $25 suspended. The penalties can be up to $300. Those arrested are taken to jail and required to post a $25 cash bond to be released pending trial.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has asked the public to respond to a proposal to ban smoking entirely on commercial airliners, which presently set aside a seating area for smokers. A CAB rule may be years away.

A look at some of the state regulations:

• Illinois: Gov. Daniel Walker in 1975 vetoed a state bill saying it was unnecessary. "Smoking is now prohibited in nearly all 'designated areas' under municipal ordinances and building regulations," he said.

• Indiana: A bill covering smoking in governmental buildings passed the Indiana House last session but failed to get through the entire legislative process. Indianapolis forbids smoking in bed in lodging houses, hospitals, or even apartment houses.

"You can't stop somebody from lighting up or follow everybody around. We get complaints all the time," said James Mitchell, fire department fire prevention chief. But he says complaints are followed up.

• Kansas: State law prohibits smoking in public places where warnings are posted, generally in chambers and offices for public bodies supported by tax money; also in elevators, art museums and some other buildings. Statute provides fines of not more than $25, and enforcement generally appears lax.

• Michigan: Three bills from a "nonsmoker bill of rights" passed by legislature within the past year, to be in force next April 1.

• Minnesota: Law enacted in 1975 requires all restaurants and all public meeting places to designate no-smoking areas. Department of Health says it gets very few calls of repeated violations, and observance of posted signs seems good.

• Nebraska: Outlaws smoking in elevators, restricts it to designated areas in indoor theaters, concert halls, at museums, libraries and buses. State Sen. Shirley Marsh, sponsor of the legislation, says, "People thank me for sponsoring the law and have suggested it be broadened."

Patients save $5.2 billion as hospital stays are cut

by PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Thirty-five million Americans spent some time in a hospital bed last year, staying an average of 7½ days — one full day less than five years ago.

The bill last year averaged $150 a day, according to Alexander McMahon, president of the American Hospital Assn.

During the past five years, tighter controls by the nation's hospitals have cut the length of the average stay.

"It's down from 8½ days," McMahon said.

"Pre-admission testing and one-day surgery for minor procedures are among the administrative tactics used to reduce the average stay."

Testing is done on an out-patient basis.

ANOTHER WAY to take some of the pain out of the patient's pocketbook is to send him to the convalescent home as soon as possible.

"We saved 35 million patients $150 each last year," McMahon said, "by getting them home earlier."

That comes to $5.2 billion. The nation's hospital bill would have been that much higher without the big crusade to reduce the length of the average hospital stay.

The most dramatic reductions in length of hospital stay have occured in the obstetrical wards. McMahon, chairman of North Carolina's Duke University, said:

"The usual stay in maternity is down from 10 days to about four or five. This is due also to changes in medical practice. If the delivery is early in the morning, the mother often is walking around in the evening."

THE AMERICAN HOSPITAL Assn. also is leading its member institutions in a move to tighten control over hospital admissions thereby curbing unnecessary hospitalization.

McMahon said more than 4,000 hospitals currently use internal controls to check up on themselves.

The systems are designed to spot unnecessary admissions or instances of keeping a patient on

Harper's Fieldhouse runs to position in nationals

by ART MUGALIAN

Wil Fieldhouse had to come home to find running success, but when he did the Harper cross-country runner made it worth his while.

Fieldhouse, who now attends school less than two miles from his alma mater, Fremd High, turned in an impressive fifth-place performance in the rain-marred Region IV championships at Champaign Saturday.

The former Florida State University student clocked a 26:50 time over the winding, five-mile course to qualify for the Junior College Nationals Nov. 13 at Farmingdale, Long Island, N.Y.

WIL FIELDHOUSE

HARPER'S TEAM finished sixth in the meet behind winner Lincoln Land (44), the btst juco team in the state. Lincoln Land romped over the rest of the 21-school field, outdistancing Danville (86) and Harper's N4C conference DuPage (109) and Triton (122).

DuPage was third and Triton fifth in front of Harper. The Hawks accumulated 151 points.

Harper will host the N4C conference meet at Palatine Hills this Friday at 4 p.m.

Saturday at Champaign, Fieldhouse was all that the Hawks had to cheer about. Wil took the lead over the first two miles, then jockeyed back and forth with several foes before settling into fifth place.

"He was in seventh for a while late in the race but he moved up really nice," said Fieldhouse's coach, veteran mentor Bob Nolan. "I think Wil ran a real competitive race."

THE WINNER individually was Greg Adams of Parkland College. Adams showed a strong kick and finished in 26:22.

Harper's second runner was Arlington grad Mike Fischer in 28th place with a 27:54. The rest of the Hawks were even farther back: Tim Blechl, 32nd, Augie Ziccarelli, 42nd; Rick Scholl, 44th; Mike Ham, 58th; and Jim Messinger, 78th.

"Fischer ran a really strong race," said Nolan. "I thought we did pretty well as a team although I thought maybe we could have done a little better."

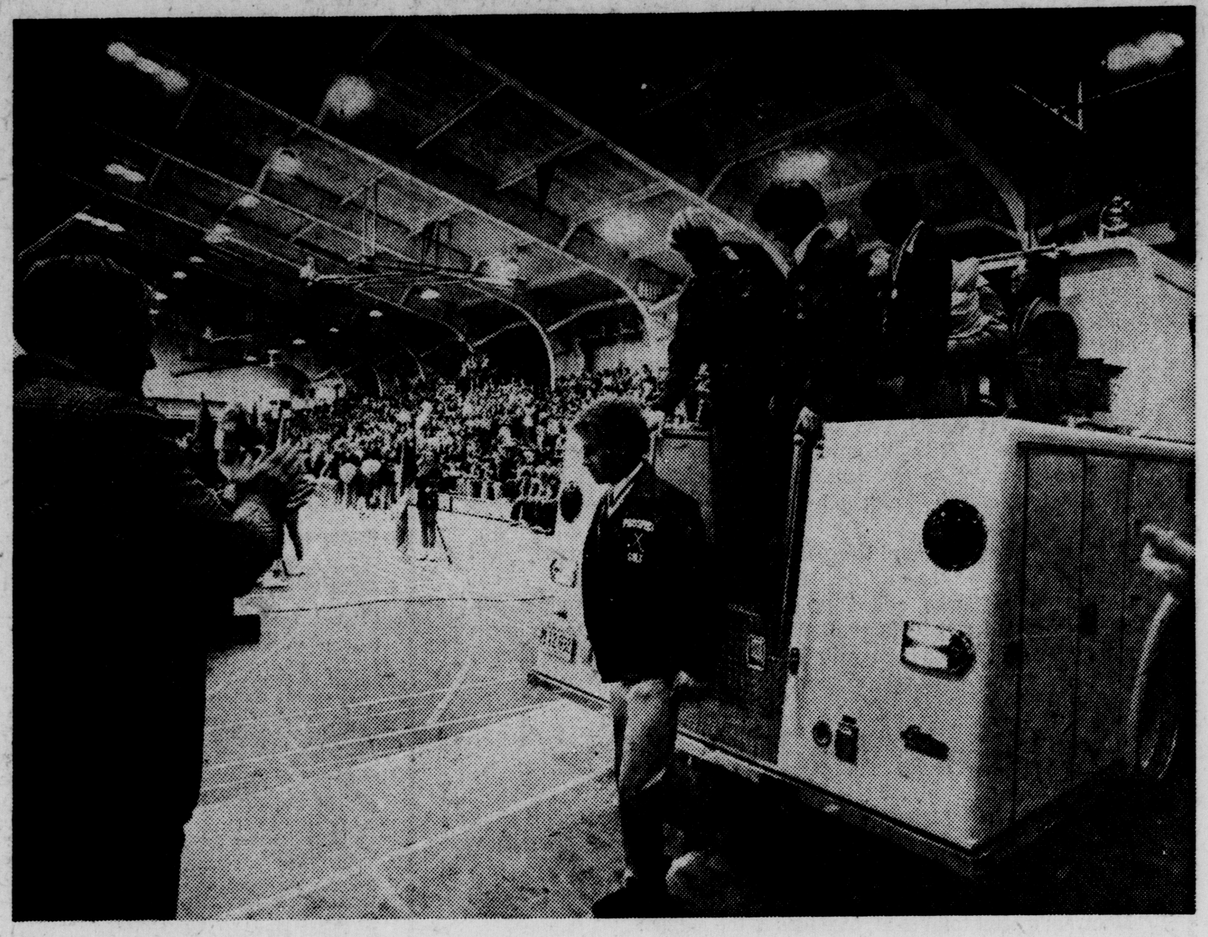

Nolan had no illusions of qualifying the whole team for the nationals, which would have required a finish in the top three. But he had hoped to beat DuPage or Triton.

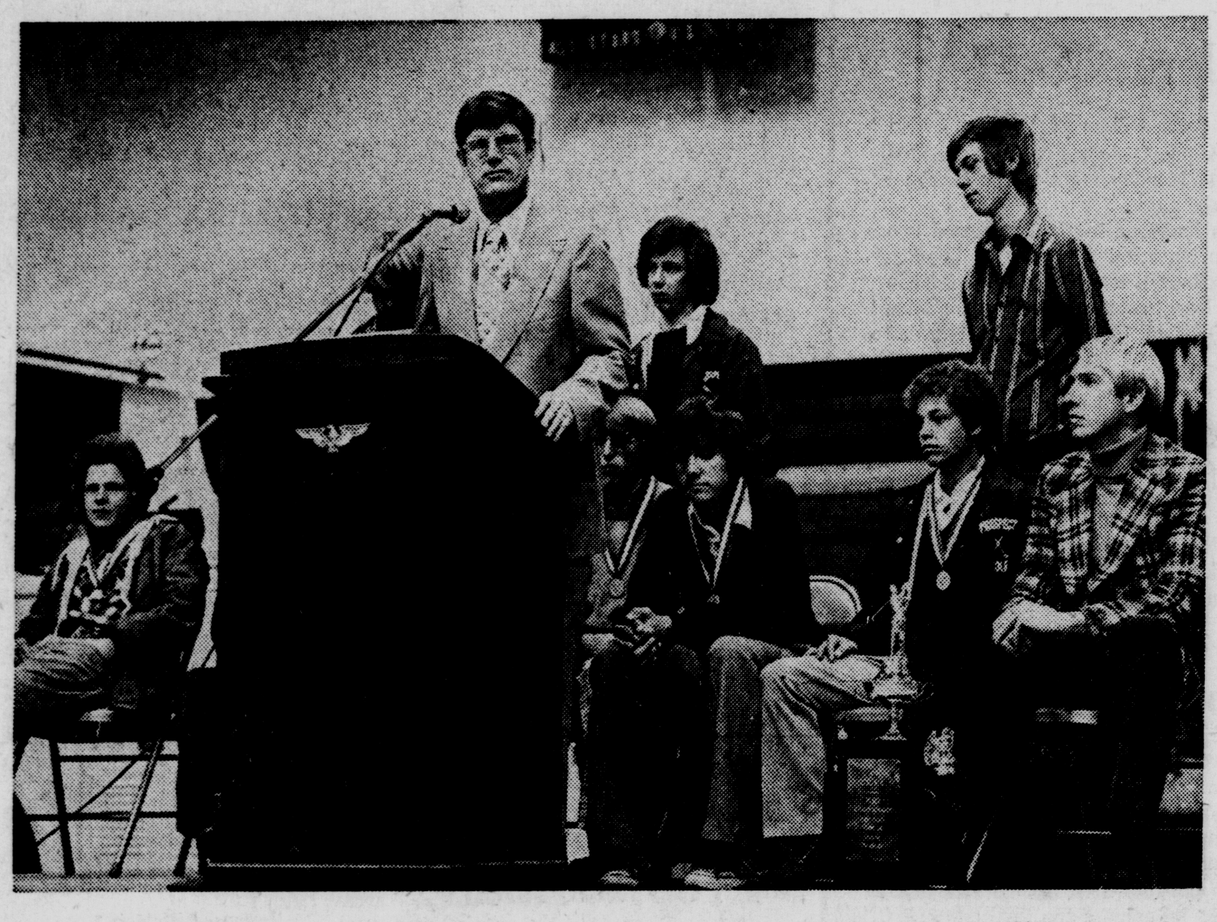

"THE COURSE WAS real slippery because of the rain," Nolan pointed out. "All the times were slower than usual because of all the turns — a lot of runners fell down."

Fieldhouse, who transferred to Harper from FSU this semester, will be heading for New York in 10 days to run in the nationals.

"You never know what can happen there," said Nolan. "Wil is a good runner, a fine runner. And he still has a couple of weeks to work.

"I'm glad for him," Nolan added. "One of his goals was to make it to the nationals. He's worked real hard and he deserved it."

WELCOME HOME. Prospect High's state golf champions were honored Monday at a special ceremony in the school fieldhouse. Conant hockey girls roll

Conant's field hockey team, like Schaumburg, is only one game away from going to the state tournament.

The Cougar girls of Coach Caren Betts blasted visiting Chicago Latin Monday afternoon, 4-0. Leading the lopsided win was Elaine Weston with three goals.

Weston was assisted by Bev Bidlo on the first goal. Kathy Surnicki and Debbie Schulz assisted on the other two. Denise Doering slammed home the final tally.

"THEY DIDN'T EVEN have an attempt on goal," said a very happy Betts, who saw her team hike its record to 9-4.

Betts praised her defensive trio of Joan Suerth, Claudia Kuzyk and Laura Amrhein. "They were very aggressive and never let down."

It was the best game of the season, according to the Conant coach, "both offensively and defensively. They finally got it together. They really did it today."

The Cougars will play either Lincoln Way or Chicago University High at Conant Wednesday at 4:30 p.m.

SCHAUMBURG WILL battle Barrington at the Elgin Larkin Sectional on Thursday afternoon. Barrington ousted Maine East Monday, 1-0.

The state tourney will be played at New Trier East next week, starting on Friday.

Restless Ara keeps busy with new show for youth

Jim Murray

When Ara Parseghian abruptly announced his retirement, or resignation, as Notre Dame head football coach in 1974 after 11 great years, everyone knew what that meant. Notre Dame had been through it before.

Ara would stay on as a consultant, it was announced, Sc, first, there would be the tentative visits to the practice field of the new coach. "I'll just stay out of the way here in the shadows and look on," type of apology. Then, there would be rumors around town of the old coach telling trusted friends "off the record" what he thought of the new veer, or wishbone, or leave-blank name of attack put in by new coach.

Then, there would be the inevitable newspaper interview, "quoted out of context," published the Monday after the new coach got beaten by Purdue or Northwestern or Michigan State. "Ex-Coach Questions Irish Strategy," would be the headline. In the front office, the good fathers would be holding their heads in their hands and saying the rosary. The alumni would get restive.

PRETTY SOON, the good Catholic boys with the 18-inch necks would be going to the heathen schools of the Big 10. Bowl committees would be looking elsewhere for New Year's Day attractions. The new coach, the team, the school would be demoralized. No one can do his best with his predecessor looking over his shoulder and frowning and saying, "Tsk! tsk!"

None of the above happened. Ara Parseghian left Notre Dame, where he had won 95 games in 11 seasons, without a backward look. He was too busy even to go to all the games. Dan Devine was, mercifully, on his own. He had only the ghosts of Rockne and Leahy to contend with, not the flesh-and-blood actuality of Ara.

Ara's game plan never included sitting around and criticizing, anyway. Parseghian is a man who seems to create a cloud of dust just sitting in an office. He is one of the most restless men ever known. He looked caged just sitting at a banquet. "Ara is part French, part Armenian, and part panther," concludes a friend.

For one thing, he had a fulltime career just turning down offers to coach in the pros. Seven different teams made a pitch to him. Soon, Ara was involved in his own insurance agency, the sports committee for Multiple Sclerosis, Ford Motor Co. commercials, ABC, and finally, his own weekly TV program. He swapped one whistle for 10 telephones. He flew more air miles than an eagle.

ARA DIDN'T QUIT, as the cliche has it, "to spend more time at home with my family." Most coaches who say that see their families less than when they were coaching. Ara just took his family, i.e., his wife, Katy, with him (the daughters are married).

Nothing much else changed. There were still late-night meetings, films to be looked at, press to be met, and long or short-range plans to be formulated. All that was missing were the "Xs" and the "Os," the recruiting, and the worrying about the left tackle's scholastic standing.

Ara's latest venture has put even the NFL offers on hold for another year. "Ara's Sports World" is an ambitious venture in sports telecasting. The intent is to lure the viewers, kids of 17 and under, into participation sports. Instead of showing lowlights of last week's Falcons-Jets games, Ara's show is part Wide World and part American Sportsman. It takes kids up the Kern River for kayaking the rapids, or to a boys' lacrosse game in Baltimore, or a girls' volleyball game in Texas. Pop Warner football gets more attention than NFL football.

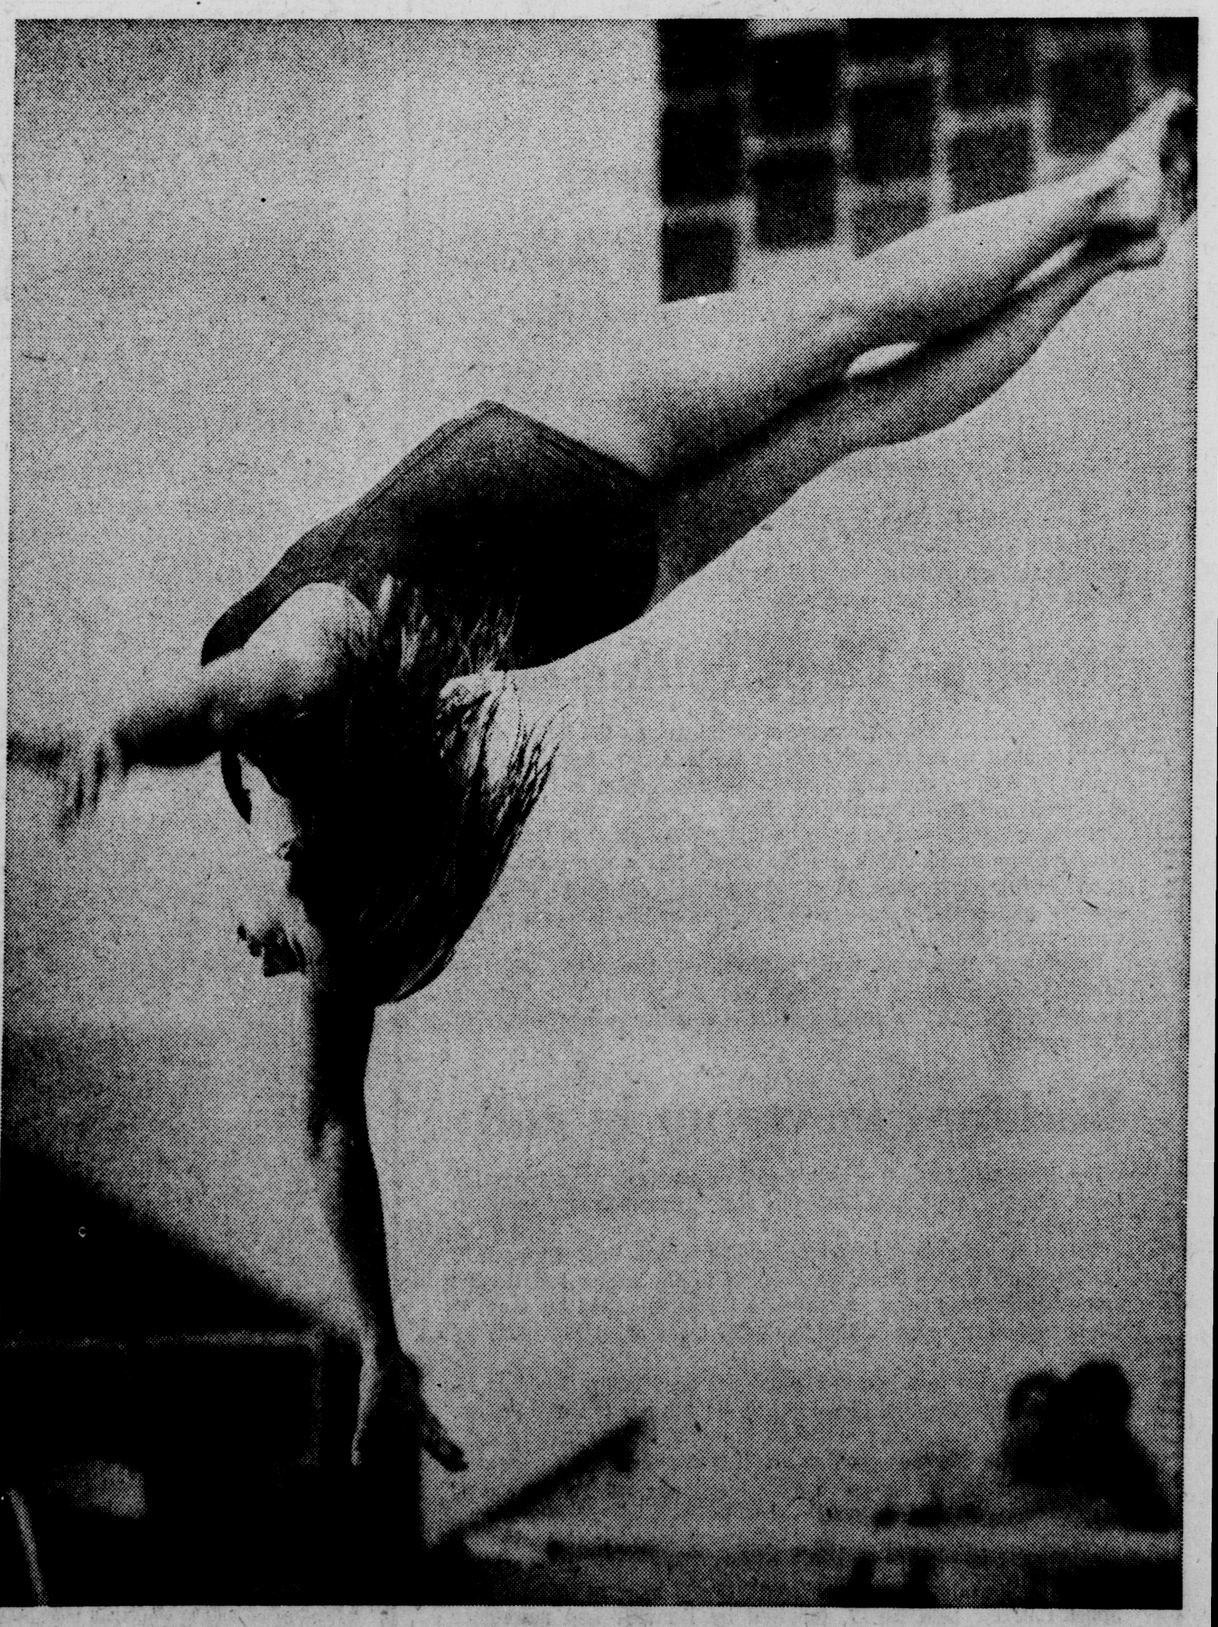

IT HAS A segment for instruction: Jack Nicklaus, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Johnny Bench, Tom Seaver, Pele, and Franco Harris, no less, will teach you how to putt, dunk, homer, curve, score, or make first downs.

Ara quit coaching to get his blood pressure down. It was not a success. There is a theory Ara will have high blood pressure till the day he has no blood pressure. He walks fast, talks fast, thinks fast, and looks in a hurry even when he's sleeping.

I asked him how he had resisted running down to Cartier Field to really show them the quarterback option. "I purposely stayed away from the practice field," he said. "I didn't even do the color on college football the first year because I knew it would be very difficult emotionally for me." Would he get back to full-time coaching? "Only in the pros. The one thing I don't miss is recruiting."

The difference between Ara Parseghian and Knute Rockne was that Rockne was sentimental but not emotional. Parseghian was emotional but not sentimental. Ara could consider the football team at Notre Dame as his, but not the institution. It makes it easier to walk away and think of the team as "his" or "theirs," not "mine" or "ours."

After all, Ara (at Northwestern) once beat Notre Dame four times in a row. In those days, he thought of them, after all, as "them." And can do it again.

Coach: Reay's bush

DETROIT — General Manager-coach Alex Delvecchio of the Detroit Red Wings has reacted angrily to statements by Chicago Coach Billy Reay that defenseman Bryan Watson should be kicked out of the National Hockey League.

"His statement is bush," Delvecchio said Monday. "Reay ought to be kicked out of the game along with his whole team.

"His team high-sticked and slashed our team all night, but for some strange reason the only penalties that the officials chose to call were the ones when our players retaliated."

In Chicago's 4-1 victory over Detroit Saturday night, Watson slugged Keith Magnuson, breaking his jaw and putting him out of action some six weeks. The altercation followed Magnuson's high-stick of Detroit's Mike Bloom, an offense that drew blood and left Bloom with a cut on the nose. Watson was suspended by league President Clarence Campbell pending a hearing in Detroit Wednesday.

"It was the most brutal thing I've seen in my NHL career," said Reay.

The Black Hawks called up minor league defenseman Ian McKegney and right winger Dan Hinton from their Dallas farm club. McKegney has been with Dallas for five years and Hinton four.

Canadiens leading NHL

MONTREAL —Steve Shutt fired home two goals Monday night to lead the Montreal Canadiens to a 3-2 victory over the Buffalo Sabres in a National Hockey League game. The win gave the Canadiens 10 victories — the most in the NHL — and boosted Montreal's point total to 21, also tops in the league.

In other NHL action, Darryl Sittler and Lanny MacDonald each tallied a pair of goals while defenseman Borje Salming ran his assist total to 10 in his last three games by setting up four goals as the Toronto Maple Leafs took a 6-3 decision over the Cleveland Barons.

Colts crush Oilers, 38-14

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Colts, led by Bert Jones, Lydell Mitchell and their ferocious "sack pack" defensive line, pounded the lack-lustre Houston Oilers 38-14 Monday night in the National Football League's nationally-televised game.

Running backs Roosevelt Leaks and Don McCauley scored two touchdowns each on short yardage plays and reserve Ron Lee ran 69 yards for the final TD as the Colts, 7-1, took a two-game lead in the AFC Eastern Division. The loss left the Oilers two games behind Cincinnati in the Central Division, tied with Pittsburgh and Cleveland at 4-4.

Kings, Cavaliers post wins

Guards Ron Boone and Bryan Taylor combined for 40 points and the Kansas City Kings overcame a lethargic fourth quarter Monday night for a 105-101 win over the visiting New York Knicks.

A three-point play by Dick Snyder with 1:43 remaining lifted the unbeaten Cleveland Cavaliers to an 82-75 victory over the New York Nets.

A good day for 2 Marks

Mark Hayes, a 27-year-old pro from Stillwater, Okla., fired a five-under-par 66 Monday to come from two strokes behind and win the $125,000 Pensacola Open by two shots.

Hayes, who earlier this year won the Byron Nelson Classic, shot four birdies on the front nine and added two more on the back nine. His only bogey was on the par-four 15th but he rebounded with a birdie on 16th hole and pars on each of the final two holes. The victory was worth $25,000 for Hayes, bringing his total winnings for the year to $151,699.

Another "Marked man" — Mark Roth — posted two key wins to successfully stave off Paul Colwell and win the $60,000 Northern Ohio Open bowling tournament in Cleveland.

The title was the fourth of the Staten Island, N. Y., bowler's Professional Bowlers Association career and his third this year. The $6,000 first place paycheck upped his earnings for 1976 to $69,800, second on the PBA money list.

Chubby best in Midwest

CHAMPAIGN — Willard Phillips' mother probably had little idea of what she wrought some score of years ago when she nicknamed her son "Chubby."

Phillips had his greatest game for Illinois Saturday, and he was named UPI's Midwest offensive player of the week. He had his best day rushing, 140 yards in 34 carries including a 46-yard touchdown run. He caught one pass for 42 yards and he returned a kickoff 30 yards.

"I had a feeling I wasn't going to play any more," he said. "Then it struck me that this was it, and I decided I better start working."

"Chubby played three weeks in a neck harness," Coach Bob Blackman said. "People felt he was not a running back, but he's been great. Very dependable, and for the third week in a row. He makes a lot of extra yards on his own."

Michigan keeps rolling on

NEW YORK — The University of Michigan, on the heels of its fourth shutout of the season and second in a row, was the overwhelming choice again this week as the No. 1 team in the nation as selected by the UPI board of coaches.

Michigan, which walloped Minnesota 45-0 Saturday in its homecoming game for its eighth straight victory this season received 40 of the 42 first place votes for 418 of a possible 420 points. The two coaches who did not choose the Wolverines as the top team in the nation voted them second.

Undefeated Pittsburgh, which received one first place vote, retained second place in the ratings with 364 points. Tony Dorsett rushed for 241 yards in pushing his NCAA career rushing record to 5,297 yards.

Rockford moves up in poll

Ben Murray's football season has been unusual. A year ago his team played in 5A and lost the state championship game to Deerfield 14-7.

This year, because the Rockford public schools dropped football, his Rockford Boylan team has dropped to 4A, he has had to play some teams three times to complete a schedule, and his team is 6-0-1, winning a place in the top 10 in the state 4A-5A class all year.

This week, because Peoria Manual swamped Peoria Spalding 28-0, knocking Spalding out of the top 10, Boylan has to share the No. 6 spot with Manual, also a consistent winner of top 10 ranking.

Whether Boylan is as good as it was a year ago, Murray doesn't know and he doesn't like to compare teams anyhow. "We might be better in some areas," he said.

The top five positions in Class 4A-5A remained the same, headed by Glenbard West, St. Laurence, Brother Rice, Belleville West and Willowbrook. After the No. 6 tie between Manual and Boylan, Joliet Catholic held No. 7, followed by Danville and newcomer New Trier East.

Arlington, Elk Grove All-Star results

Arlington Heights beat Elk Grove Village in all four Junior League games played at Rolling Meadows High School. This was the first meeting between teams from the two cities, and was billed as "the First Annual Arlington Heights — Elk Grove Village All-Star Game." Traveling trophies were awarded to the winning Arlington Heights Teams.

A.H. Cowboys 18, E. G. Jets 0

The Cowboys completely dominated the Jets. All three Cowboy touchdowns were scored by John McDonnell. The first came on a nine-yard run off tackle, culminating a 60-yard TD march. The second came on a 12-yard pass from quarterback Pete Lydon. The third was on an eight-yard sweep.

Lydon completed five of 10 passes for 72 yards and one TD. End Larry Gorey caught three passes for 40 yards. Flanker Dave Matt caught one pass for 20 yards.

Outstanding offensive blocking for the Cowboys by tackle Jeff Brinkman and guard Brock Cummings opened big holes, making the 158 yards total offense possible. Defensively, guard Phil Damato, linebackers Dave Miller and Kevin Neumann, and tackle Keith Joewik teamed up to hold the Jets to 32 total yards in offense.

A.H. Packers 22, E.G. Packers 0

In the battle of the "Packers," a big Arlington team dominated. The first score came on a quarterback keeper by T. Ries, after a pass reception by M. Baum to the eight-yard line set up the play. D. Pritchard ran for the conversion. Baum scored in the second quarter on a pass, and D. Dublinski ran for the third and final Packer touchdown. Ries also recovered a fumble, and impressed everyone with long punts. G. Fox, B. Lonergan, M. Jennings, P. Finnerty and B. Swanson were outstanding on defense.

A.H. Falcons 20, E.G. 49ers 0

The Falcons scored three touchdowns in the first quarter, but one was called back. Chris Mahon took a reverse right and ran 70-yards to score. Mike Zablotny scored the conversion on a quick pitch right. Minutes later, big Falcon end Scott Lynch took a pass from quarterback Steve Rossdeutcher and raced 43 yards into the endzone. The final Falcon score came on a 75-yard pass play from Rossdeutcher to Zablotny. Rossdeutcher passed 14 times, completing seven for 149 yards. Clerkin, Bob Baratta and Rod Seligmann each made six tackles. Zablotny made nine tackles and recovered two fumbles. James O'Kane also recovered a fumble, and Doug Hartshorn recovered an on-side kick. The 49ers were held to just three first downs.

A.H. Colts 12, E.G. Bears 6

Elk Grove came back strong in the final game, but still was a loser as the extremely fast Colts scored two touchdowns in the second half to win. Both touchdowns were scored by Doug Brown, on runs of 60 and 70 yards. Both teams were sluggish on offense, a tribute to the excellent defenses of both. Kyle Grove, Tony Mirabelli, Eric Schmidt and Curt Petersen were particularly outstanding for the Colts.

Slims tennis, Rotarians team up for handicapped

Plans to help the Rotary Clubs of Chicagoland's program for the handicapped through special ticket sales on the last three days of the Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament were revealed recently at a joint Slims/Rotary kickoff luncheon.

Attending were representatives of more than 50 Rotary clubs in the city and suburbs and Virginia Slims of Chicago officials. Also in attendance was the national promotional director for the Virginia Slims Circuit, Jeanie Brinkman, who told the guests that the 1977 Virginia Slims tour would offer $1.25 million in prize money.

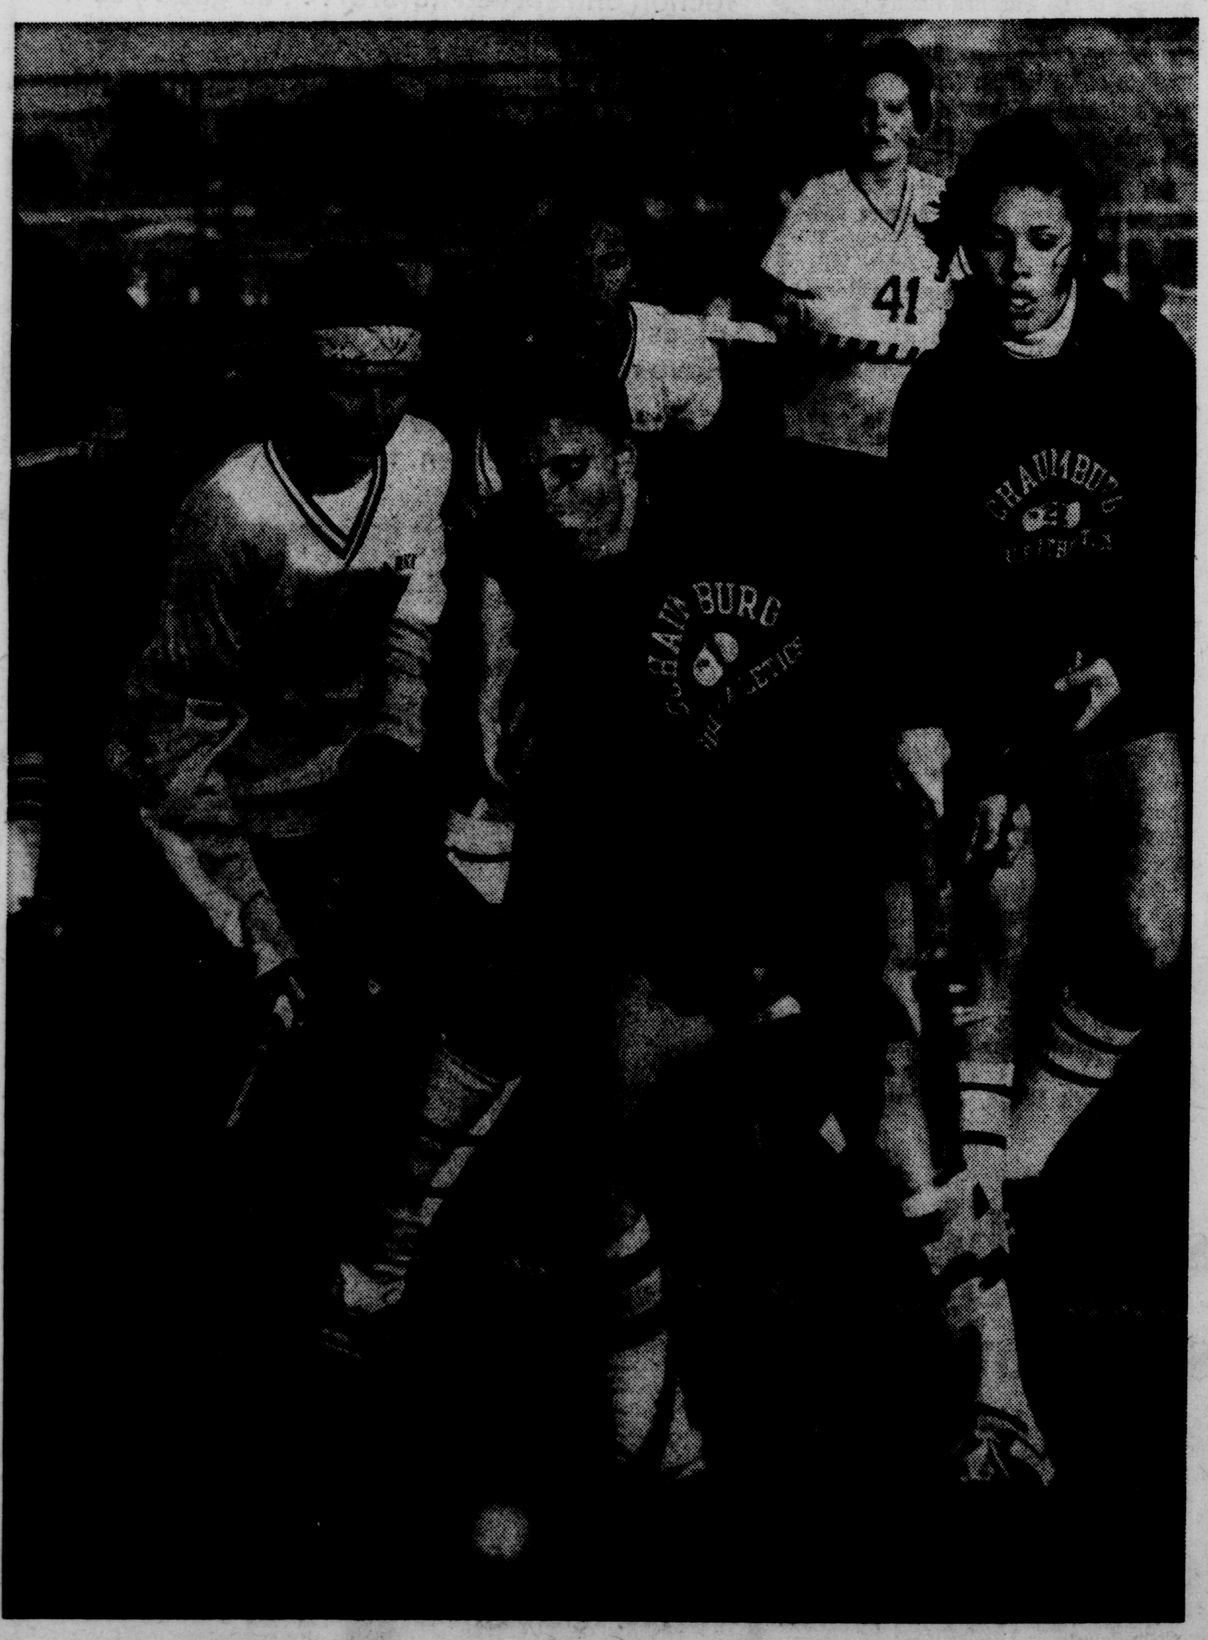

Former Illinois state governor William G. Stratton, now vice president of the Canteen corp and a leader in the Rotary clubs, joined Jock Miller, director of the Viginia Slims of Chicago Tournament, in explaining the Rotarians' role in the $100,000 weeklong event scheduled for the Amphitheatre Feb. 7-13.

"We Rotarians consider tennis a wholesome nd exciting sport at the whole family can enjoy," said Stratton, chairman of the Rotary Clubs' Virginia Slims tennis committee. "It's a beautiful sport to watch, and I am sure that hundreds of our members are looking forward to seeing these great Virginia Slims pros in action.

"Besides, anything worth while that helps our program for the handicapped deserves the support of all Rotarians."

Miller, president of Tennis Promotions & Consultants, Inc., the promotional arm for the Virginia Slims of Chicago, told the Rotarians and other guests that "this year's tournament should be the best of the six Virginia Slims events held here since 1972. With the active support of the Chicagoland Rotary Clubs, I am confident that the tournament will raise a substantial sum for the handicapped."

Special $90 Box Seat Series Tickets good for two during the last three days of the tournament are being printed for the exclusive use of Rotary club members and their friends, Miller said. Reserved and general admission tickets also will go on sale soon, he added.

Practices planned for Arlington youth

Official practice sessions for the 4-6 grade levels of the Arlington Heights Youth Basketball Assn. will begin Nov. 8 in preparation for the opening of league competition on Nov. 19.

A limited number of roster vacancies remain available for those youths interested in playing but not previously registered. Arrangements can be made by contacting Jerry Peterson, registration chairman, at 359-9289.

Peterson has indicated that a second registration will be held on Nov. 6 to support the demand and assure the participation of those youths in the 7-8 grade levels which have indicated their desire to play but have not registered previously. Registration is to be held at Recreation Park, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

Anyone interested in donating time or experience to the program will be well rewarded through personal satisfaction. Coaches and assistant coaches are always needed as instructors. Those interested should contact the association vice president Dick Benoit at 253-4499.

Dist. 59 endures enrollment drop, unit plan hearing

Editor's note: Due to an oversight, the Dist. 59 story was left out of The Herald's "Living in our Suburbs" special section last Saturday. The Herald regrets the error. Text of that story follows:

Residents in the communities of Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect which are within Elk Grove Township are served by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

The 17 elementary and four junior high schools in the district serve almost 9,900 students. This figure is about a 5.6 per cent drop from the district's 10,455 student enrollment in 1975-76.

Because of declining student enrollment and other cutbacks in state aid to education, the Dist. 59 Board of Education eliminated some teaching positions for 1976-77, but the average class size has remained at 26.

THE DISTRICT currently is in the midst of hearings with the Cook County superintendent of schools to determine whether the district may change from an elementary school dist. to a unit district which would include Dist. 59's present schools plus Forest View and Elk Grove high schools. The high schools now are part of High School Dist. 214.

If the unit district concept is approved by the Illinois schools superintendent, Dist. 59 residents will vote on whether they would like to become part of a unit district.

The district offers a variety of educational concepts to its students, from learning in an open classroom setting to a more traditional environment.

A string instrument program begins in the fourth grade and other instrumental programs begin in the fifth grade. All schools have a learning center staffef by a full-time teacher and aides. The junior highs serve students in grades six, seven and eight.

THE DISTRICT offers no hot lunch program, but junior high students may purchase food from vending machines.

Bus service is provided free to students living more than 1.5 miles from scool and to kindergarteners living more than one mile away. Bus service is available to some other students for $38 a year.

Supt. Roger Bardwell and other central administrators can be reached at the administration center, 2123 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, 593-4300. The board of education meets at the center every first and third Monday of the month.

New uses turn land losses to profit

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Business has its white elephants, just as homemakers do, and has more of a problem in disposing of them.

Outmoded, or just unneeded, plants and land often are real white elephants that can drain from profits about $300,000 to more than $1 million a year because of tax, insurance and maintenance charges.

But they can be sold at a profit if the problem is attacked intelligently, says Howard P. Hoffman, New York, who specializes in selling these properties.

THE USUAL TROUBLE, he said, is that management or the board of directors tries to dump the unwanted property on an ordinary real estate broker. This broker thinks mainly of commissions on "as is" sales.

The only potential "as is" purchaser is a direct competitior, Hoffman said. He won't want the property for the same reasons the owner company has decided to abandon it.

The only course is to find a new use for the property. This means expert advice and spending a little money, but it will pay, Hoffman said. He gave several examples of deals his firm has arranged to dispose of white elephant properties.

A WORKED-OUT water-filled strip gravel mine, virtually written off by its owner, was turned into a profitable lakeside condominium housing development.

One abandoned warehouse was draining $500,000 a year from its owner. Hoffman succeeded in converting it so well that it brought in rents of $750,000 a year. The company which owned it sold a leasehold on the warehouse for $1.3 million.

And one of the hardest cases involved a deserted complex of 50-year-old factory buildings in a northeastern city. They had outmoded DC electrical wiring and a central heating system that would have to be junked when the complex was broken up, and some of the buildings would have to be torn down. Keeping this empty eyesore was costing the manufacturing company that owned it $480,000 a year.

Within three months Hoffman succeeded in carrying out the demolitions and preparing a plan that resulted in sale of part of the complex to the city and the rest to a private investor.

The deal that turned the abandoned gravel mine into a lakeside condominium near downtown Indianapolis resulted in a bid of 20 times any previous offer for the property plus a half share of the continuing profit on it.

Learning disabilities unit to meet

The Professionals in Learning Disabilities will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at 1000 Skokie Blvd., Wilmette. The meeting is open to nonmembers.

Jean Kirsch will speak on special education in South Africa. Mrs. Kirsch is from Johannesburg, South Africa, where she received her education and training in children's learning disabilities. She will discuss the similarities and differences between diagnostic tests and remedial techniques in South Africa and area programs

Diet, exercise for heart to be discussed Nov. 11

"Nutrition, Exercise and Heart" wll be discussed at 8 p.m., Nov. 11, in the fellowship hall of Trinity United Methodist Church, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Dr. Jack van Elk, of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, will discuss how to prevent hardening of the arteries, coronary arteriosclerosis, a major heart disease form.

Proper foods plus moderate exercise can mean a stronger heart and a longer life, said van Elk.

"More than a million people die each year of arteriosclerosis, and many of them die before age 65. Most of these deaths, however, could be prevented by proper eating and exercising habits," he said.

Van Elk is assistant professor of cardiology at Northwestern University Medical School and a past president of the Heart Association of North Cook County.

The free program is sponsored by the Men's Assn., Service League and medical staff of Lutheran General.

Wayne E. Jagusch, Arlington Heights, recently was elected president of the hospital's Men's Assn.
